Hanley Calls Mass. Mills Wage Reduction Methods Unfair and Un-American

Mammoth Stills and Other Paraphernalia Found in Campaw Street House

The method employed by the officials of the Massachusetts mills in reducing the wages of their operatives was this morning branded as unfair and un-American by John Hanley, chairman of the strike committee. He contended that the operatives are selling their labor to the manufacturers and that in fairness to them they should at least know the wages they are working for.

"There were no notices posted and the operatives were given an oral notice of a wage reduction," declared Mr. Hanley, "but the amount was not specified. I am informed that in some departments the operatives were told the reduction would be the same as that in effect in similar departments of the Merrimack Mfg. Co., but that is not specifying anything, for there was never an official statement relative to the amount of the reduction given out by officials of the Merrimack. In other departments the employees were simply told that a reduction in wages would go into effect."

Such action is not giving the operative a chance to sell his labor for what he thinks it is worth. What would happen if Agent Mitchell went into a clothing store, ordered a suit sent to his home and then after the goods were delivered, he went back to the store and offered to pay not the market price, but what he thought the suit was worth? I believe that the same rule that applies to Agent Mitchell when he buys clothing or other necessities of life, should be in force when he purchases the labor of his mill operatives.

"It is the agent's or other mill officials' privilege to reduce wages when they see fit, but they should state the amount of the cut and give their employees ample time to think the matter over. In the case of the Massachusetts the operatives were notified gradually and were only given a day and a half in which to decide whether or not they will sell their labor for whatever amount the company saw fit to pay. I repeat that such action is unfair and un-American."

Mr. Hanley believes that if before announcing a wage reduction the mill officials called in a committee representing the operatives and discussed the matter in a family way, strikes could have been avoided. "There are three other large cotton mills in this city that have not reduced wages, and it is said that they are soon to follow in the footsteps of the Hamilton Mfg. Co., Bay State Cotton Corp., Merrimack Mfg. Co. and Massachusetts mills, but as an executive of the United Textile Workers of America and chairman of the local strike committee, I would suggest to the officials of these companies, which are the Tremont & Suffolk, Appleton Co. and Booth mills, that before they make wage cut announcements, they call in representatives of their operatives and endeavor to adjust matters before trouble sets in."

Mr. Hanley intimated that the strikers of the four local cotton mills are ready at any time to confer with the officials of the different mills in an endeavor to bring about a settlement of grievances, or again they are willing to submit their case to arbitration. The latest report from strike headquarters relative to the Massachusetts mill is to the effect that between 500 and 600 pickets were at the mill gates this morning and that they succeeded in adding to the number of their ranks. Six ring spinner fixers who had remained on the job are now out and it is said that the mill is so badly crippled that unless the company wishes to operate at a loss, a general shutdown will be ordered within a few days.

Strikers Hold Meeting. The strikers held a largely attended meeting in Grades & Labor hall this morning and at the close of the meeting it was announced that beginning tomorrow, meetings will be held every morning at 10 o'clock for the different nationalities as Polish, Greek and Portuguese speakers have been secured to address their people. Mass meetings of the strikers in general will be held every afternoon at 2 o'clock.

All records of moonshine seizures in Lowell and vicinity and most of those in the entire state were broken today when, after many night and early morning vigils by Sergeant Michael B. Winn and Officer Alfred J. Cooney of the liquor squad at the premises numbered 49 and 51 Campaw street, the two liquor officers, under the leadership of Captain George Palmer descended upon the house at 10.25 this morning armed with a search warrant, and found a distillery of extraordinary capacity in full operation.

The house is a two-family dwelling of two and one-half stories. The partitions have been removed recently, and the house converted into a mammoth moonshine plant. On the first story of the house is a mass of cast-iron furniture and two stills of 60-gal. capacity each, evidently the ones used in the beginning of activities and dismantled and cast aside as business improved.

The second floor was the real plant. In the rear room of the section numbered 49, two 100-gallon stills were in full operation, with the mash boiling on gas stoves and the coils running through tanks of cold water at the rear. The distilled product dropping a large receptacle on the floor. In the room opposite, separated by a bathroom, was a still with a capacity of 160-gallons, also in operation when the officers arrived. While the other two were of the common washbottle variety, although specially constructed, this was a large cylindrical still of the latest type. About 70 gallons of moonshine fell into the hands of the law along with the stills and other paraphernalia. It was evidently, from its odor, made of good barley mash, and the odor of the condensed 'shine dripping from the stills and coils in operation filled the premises with an old time zest.

Along with the moonshine, a great quantity of other materials were seized. In a closet in the front room of number 51, 60 new tin cans of gallon size were confiscated. Charcoal and stoves for its consumption, filtering paper, a heterogeneous collection of glass jugs and bottles and other necessary items were found in the same room. In the cellar were empty barrels giving off the odor of mash, and in the attic were 18 barrels filled to the brim with barley mash of a good quality, according to the officers.

The officers first noticed automobile parties and occasional pedestrians visiting the premises and became suspicious. This morning they fell upon the place, but found the owner unaccountably absent. His arrest is expected to follow in a short time.

CHILDREN'S OUTING AT TYNGSBORO GREAT SUCCESS

GOV. COX, PRES. HUTCHINS PARKER AND GROUP OF "KIDS"

One of the most memorable and successful events in the long list of local Rotarian activities was brought to a happy conclusion about 5 o'clock last evening, when the 436 children, representing the French-American orphanage, St. Peter's orphanage, the Ayer and O'Leary homes and the Day Nursery, together with almost 200 guests, left the scene of the annual picnic yesterday at the Martin Luther grounds in Tyngsboro.

It was a never-to-be-forgotten day, especially for the little tots who enjoyed every moment in the great outdoors, from the time they left the Ayer home in the 78 automobiles and trucks, until they were again conveyed to their respective homes, tired, some of them a little wet, but contented for being so.

The big day started with a parade through the downtown streets, covering Merrimack, Central, Appleton, Westford and Pine to the Princeton boulevard and thence through North Chelmsford to the grounds. The parade consisted of five divisions arranged in the order named: French-American orphanage, St. Peter's orphanage, Ayer home, O'Leary home and the Day Nursery. Each machine was numbered and bore a triangular-shaped placard with the inscription, "Children's Outing—Lowell Rotary Club—1922." Every child wore a tag on which was inscribed the name of the home from which he or she came.

The Broadway Social club has extended an invitation to the children of the North common for the use of their shower baths on warm days. This kind offer will enable the children to obtain relief from the excessive heat and will remove the danger that is entailed in bathing in open streams.

Bicycle Races. Bicycle races for all the children of the city, under 15 years of age, will be held on the South common on Aug. 1. The possible races are: 100-yd. dash, from a standing start; 1-mile race, against time; fancy and form riding race; 1-mile relay race, six riders to a team. It is expected that there will be valuable prizes awarded to the winners of this meet.

City Purchasing Agent Koye said that he will be obliged to hold over the requisition until such a time as some of the coal desired is obtainable. When this will be is a matter of pure conjecture.

To supply 1000 tons of bituminous coal for the water department—600 tons each at the West Sixth street and Boulevard stations—the Home Coal Co. bid $9.53 per ton; Thorndike Coal Co., $9.50; M. A. Wilson, $9.73; D. J. Sullivan, $9.72.

The Home Co. bid $9.52 on 100 tons of soft coal for city hall; E. A. Wilson bid $9.55 and D. J. Sullivan, $9.72. Although Home had the low bid here, Wilson guaranteed 100 more B.T.U.'s, and the bids will be checked up before being awarded.

None Available in City Dealers Say—Purchasing Agent Will Wait

The city of Lowell could not obtain a single bid today on a requisition to supply 125 tons of broken coal for consumption at the city hall building. Four local dealers submitted bids on soft coal for the water works department, but not one of them attempted to quote a price on broken coal, each saying that there is no broken or stove coal in the city in any appreciable amount.

City Purchasing Agent Koye said that he will be obliged to hold over the requisition until such a time as some of the coal desired is obtainable. When this will be is a matter of pure conjecture.

ATTEMPTS MADE TO RUN MINES

Governors Reply to Harding's Proclamation, Saying They Will Help

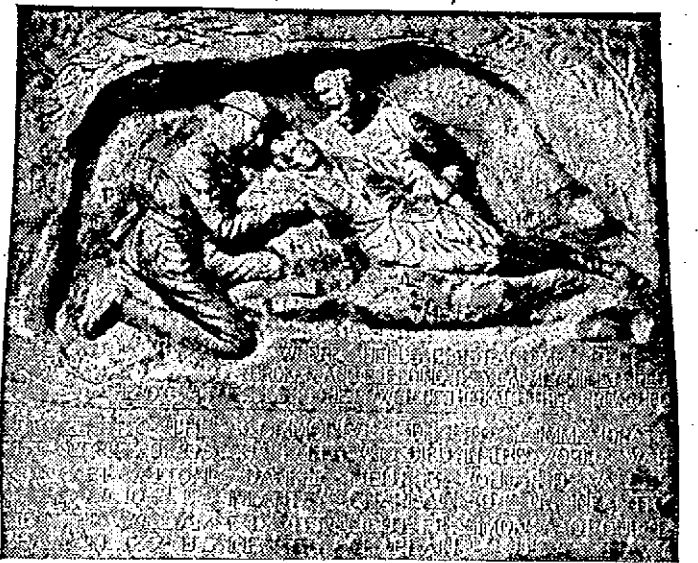

Operators in Large Illinois Mine Say Impossible to Work

The coal situation seemed to be a bit nearer solution today with government and mine officials attempting to reach some sort of an understanding. Yesterday President Harding sent out a proclamation to governors of all states in which bituminous coal was mined, asking that all mines be opened immediately. He also asked that these governors give mine operators sufficient protection. The text of the proclamation may be found on page four.

Telegrams were today received at Washington from many areas saying that the president's wishes would be carried out as fully as possible. Mines in Pennsylvania reported today that agreements had been reached in some instances.

From West Frankfort, Illinois, came the news that operators in Franklin county stated there was no possibility of resuming coal production under President Harding's plan. This county is said to be the largest coal producing area of its size in the United States.

Beautiful Memorial to Memory of Bay State Clergymen Unveiled Today

WAR CHAPLAINS' MEMORIAL TABLET AT STATE HOUSE

(Special to The Sun) BOSTON, July 19.—The beautiful tablet commemorating the service of four Massachusetts chaplains, who died in the World war, was dedicated at the state house this noon. Rep. Howard D. Sawyer of Ware being the orator of the day. Many notables attended including Cardinal O'Connell, Bishop William Lawrence, Gen. Edwards and W. C. Hayes of Springfield, and state and city officials.

The memorial tablet will be placed on the wall of the third floor, between the southern entrance to the chamber of the house of representatives and the speaker's room. The tablet, which is by Miss Bashka Paetz of Boston, portrays two chaplains ministering to a wounded soldier, one of the figures being that of Father John B. DeValco, Catholic priest of New Bedford; and the other the Rev. Walton Danker, Protestant clergyman of Worcester, both of whom were chaplains.

LOWELL DISTRICT COURT

Motor Vehicle and Liquor Law Violations Heard—Other Cases

Several cases of violation of the motor vehicle laws, along with a complaint of illegal keeping and two larceny charges, one against a man now employed at the D. & M. car shops, featured this morning's session of district court. It was reported that Judge Eight was to preside at the session, but Associate Justice Fisher appeared at the appointed time.

The first case was that of John Russek, who was charged by overseers of the Massachusetts mills with stealing 4 1/2 yards of cloth, valued at 72 cents, yesterday. One overseer told of finding the cloth in Russek's possession, and the overseer in charge of the room from which the cloth was taken testified that he had seen the roll of cloth which the defendant was alleged to have cut. The man said that he had taken the cloth with no intention of stealing it; he simply wished to use it for foot wrappings while at work, as is the custom in most mills. He was fined $25.

Arnold C. Baker, who was said to have stolen a drill and two screwdrivers, the property of Leon Smith, was continued until tomorrow. The defendant, an employee of the Billoria shops at the present time, pleaded not guilty.

John Manokos, charged with illegal keeping, was granted a continuance of two days.

Albert Lalendresse was brought in by Motorcycle Officer Hunter for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk. The officer said he had warned him repeatedly but his persistence finally caused his arrest. Although the youth took exceptions to the officer's testimony, he was ordered to pay a $5 fine.

A charge of operating an automobile without a registration certificate was brought against Harry Cohen by Officer Hunter. The motorcycle officer said that he had held Cohen up and asked to see his registration card and license. Although the license was available, the registration was not. Cohen said he told the officer he was tired and he would go home. The officer said "don't bother." The fine was $5.

Costes Rangos was the leading contributor in this group. Charged with leaving his car in Market street with no lights, he said that he was too tired to bring it to the place in Worthen street where he kept it usually, less than five minutes' walk from his home. Officer William Liston, who made the arrest, said that he had warned Rangos several times. He said that he did not interfere with the man who leaves his car on the right side of the street with a lantern suspended at the extreme left of the car in the rear. This man, he alleged, never does this. Defendant's attorney explained to the court that Rangos makes very long trips daily, and is very tired when he returns to his home; therefore the breach of the ordinance, Judge Fisher imposed a fine of $10.

NEW PROPOSALS ARE SUBMITTED

Russian Delegation at The Hague Advances Several New Plans

Russia Would Negotiate Directly With Foreigners in Money Matters

THE HAGUE, July 19. (By the Associated Press)—New proposals in connection with compensation for confiscated property and payment of the Russian debt were advanced by the Russian delegation at a meeting today with the entire non-Russian commission of the conference on Russian affairs here.

The Russians suggested an arrangement by which Russia would undertake to negotiate directly with foreigners for the payment of compensation for confiscated property and with bondholders for settlement of the Russian debt.

It was announced that the non-Russian representatives would meet later to discuss the proposal.

Russia, her representatives said, would engage to make arrangements with foreign claimants within two years.

The Russian proposal that all the delegations, including the Russian, submit this project to the respective governments and await an answer for one week at The Hague. The Russians for the time being dropped the question of credits as, they said, the non-Russians had declined credits.

American Federation of Labor Asks Support for Rail Strikers

BOSTON, July 19.—Seven masked men, heavily armed, got past the guards at the Boston & Maine Railroad shops at Concord, N. H., late last night, entering a dormitory where 50 sleepers were sleeping, drove them out of doors and ordered them out of town, according to a statement issued by the Boston & Maine officials today. There was shooting and hand to hand fighting in which several workmen were beaten, one requiring hospital treatment, says the statement.

A. F. of L. Asks Support WASHINGTON, July 19.—An appeal was issued today by the American Federation of Labor "to all workers everywhere, to support the railroad workers in their efforts to secure a just settlement of the railroad shops trades dispute."

LOWELL SHOWS BIG GAIN BOSTON, July 19.—According to returns received from the building department of 33 Massachusetts cities, who have reported to the department of labor and industries the aggregate value represented by applications filed for permits to build during the month of June, 1922, was $12,333,315, showing a decrease of $1,711,013 or 11.4 per cent, compared with the aggregate $14,044,328 for May, 1922.

The building permits filed in Lowell show an aggregate of $249,326 for June of this year and $331,563 for May of this year, thus making Lowell one of the few places showing a substantial gain in building.

MUNICIPAL MOVIES The municipal movies that were to be given on the North common last night were cancelled because of the rain. The same program will be given at the Washington park playstead tonight.

Wedded by Radio When Minister Fails to Get Home in Time—Just as Happy, Says Dallas Couple

At one point of the city is the bride. At another is the bridegroom. And at a third is the minister. And they're all set for the marriage ceremony.

This situation actually existed recently in Dallas, Texas.

The wedding took place by radio. Miss Mable Brady was the bride and John H. Stone the bridegroom. Rev. Thomas H. Harper, at a radio station some distance off, performed the ceremony.

Each said, "I do" from different stations. Then came the kiss, also by radio, and the ceremony was over. But that radio kiss was not far ahead of the actual kiss of the wedded couple, when they met.

all the necessary functions by one tube.

As a matter of fact two tubes may be used—with the circuits of the second and third articles associated.

To those not skilled in handling vacuum tube circuits this arrangement will prove simpler.

Conductive Coupling.
It will be noted that Figures 1 and 2 differ only in the method of association or "coupling." Inductive coupling between the two circuits can scarcely give sufficiently close coupling. Conductive coupling is, therefore, resorted to.

Thus the pick-up coil is actually made a part of the controller circuit. A common battery supply is also used to simplify the set-up.

The controller circuit is adjusted to generate oscillations of approximately 10,000 a second. This produces a wave length of about 30,000 meters.

Attention is also called to the insertion of condenser C4. This passes the regenerated energies to the grid of the oscillator tube. When this tube is in the positive half of its cycle, it provides, in effect, a short circuiting of the regenerative inductance, thus stopping the action of that tube.

REMOVE "CAGED IN" CHILD FROM HOME

SAUGUS, July 19.—Edward Cushing, 18-months-old baby boy who was boarded at the home of Mrs. Emma Redding, 714 Broadway, Saugus, was permanently removed yesterday from the home by Supt. James E. Fee of the children's division of the state board of charity, department of public welfare.

Removal of the child was the result of an investigation made by the state after it had received complaint from a neighbor of the Reddings regarding the alleged cruel and abusive treatment given the baby. The complaint stated that Mrs. Redding was neglecting the infant boy, and was keeping him caged up in a small nest box for hours at a stretch.

Miss Jennie Purchase, agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, was notified and after her investigation, coupled with that of the Saugus police and the state authorities, the child was removed to other quarters.

Supt. Fee emphatically stated yesterday that Mrs. Redding was not guilty of abusive treatment to the Cushing child and that the reason the child was being removed from her care was because of the adverse criticism which was unjustly made by

EX-MAYOR BLAKE OF BANGOR DIES

BANGOR, Me., July 19.—Hon. Edward Howard Blake, former mayor, bank president, lawyer and reputed to be the wealthiest man in Maine, died yesterday after a long decline. Funeral services will be held Thursday. He was born in Bangor, July 8, 1856, the son of William A. Blake, a prominent business man and active in civic matters, attended the Bangor schools and in 1873 entered Bowdoin college. He left in his junior year and went to the quarter of Paris for some time, studying art and the French and German languages.

Returning to Bangor he took up the study of law in the office of his uncle, D. H. Blake, and then entered Albany Law school, from which he graduated in 1878. He specialized in admiralty law. He practiced for a time in Bangor but abandoned this activity to attend to numerous business interests.

ARLINGTON STATION SETS CORRECT TIME

How do ships at sea keep track of the correct time?

By the sun? Yes, but that's gone out of use for there is now a more accurate method of setting the ship's chronometer.

That's done by radio.

Every day, beginning at 11:55 in the morning and 9:55 at night, radio operators on board ships along the American coast set their instruments for the reception of a 2500-meter wave. It comes from the high power U. S. naval station at Arlington.

From this station, at these hours every day, the exact time is transmitted in dots and dashes to all radio operators tuning in. These dots and dashes come from the master clock at the U. S. naval observatory.

Beginning at 11:55 and 9:55, a dot is sent out by radio each second for the first 20 seconds. Then there is a lapse of one second and the dots are resumed up to the fifty-fifth second, when there is another silence of five seconds.

This system is repeated each minute, until the fiftieth second of the fifty-ninth minute is reached. Then instead of a lapse of five seconds there is a break of 10 seconds.

At exactly 12 noon and 10 at night, a dash of three seconds' duration is transmitted. This is followed by an

President Harding's Message to Governors Important

The proposal of the federal government to the United Mine Workers and the various coal operators, whose mines are under suspension, to submit all questions in dispute to a national coal commission for arbitration, has been declined.

The Mine Workers declined as a body. The majority of the bituminous operators pledged unqualified acceptance. The anthracite operators filed unconditional acceptance.

A minority of the bituminous operators accepted the principle of arbitration, but made specifications which could not be considered.

I had proposed that the operators and mine workers in dispute should immediately resume coal production under the wage scales and working conditions which prevailed at the time of the strike on last April 1, that every question in dispute should go to a national commission to be composed of three representatives of the mine workers, three representatives of the operators and five representatives of the American people.

It was proposed to make the commission the final authority on all disputes until next March, and meanwhile the commission was to inaugurate a searching inquiry into every phase of the coal industry, in order to recommend the way to maintain understandings between workers and employers, to promote steady employment and assure a continuous and ample fuel supply.

The failure to secure the acceptance of this proposal for a voluntary adjustment left no other course but to invite the mine operators to return to their mines and resume activities.

I trust you will find it consistent to second this invitation, if you have not already done so, with the invitation to all miners and operators to resume their work. This invitation should be accompanied by such assurance of maintained order and the protection of lawful endeavor as will give assurance to everybody concerned. I want to convey to you in this message the assurance of the prompt and full support of the federal government whenever and wherever you find your own agencies of law and order inadequate to meet the situation.

Your state government and the federal government are jointly responsible for maintained conditions under which free men, willing to work, may work in safety. We are responsible for the production of coal, the transportation of a fuel supply to serve the necessities of the American people and the public utility which, in turn, particularly the railways engaged in interstate commerce, we must have ample coal to maintain industrial activity; we must have the coal necessary to the health, security and the activity of all the people. I recite to you these details because it is important to have it understood how far the federal government has gone in seeking a voluntary adjustment. Thus far, there has been no challenge of the right of workers to decline employment, or the right of the employers to hire as they elect.

Our present duty is to guarantee security in the exercise of these rights, security in all lawful operations, and afford a safe opportunity for that production and distribution demanded by the necessities of the American people.

There has been no government assumption of a part in the dispute between organized workers and organized employers. I did offer the only available agency which I know to effect a settlement, and these good offices have not availed.

It becomes necessary, therefore, in the name of common welfare, to invite protection in the fulfillment of that obligation which attaches to an American industry engaged in providing any public necessity and to afford security to all men alike who are ready and willing to serve the common need.

No clause is so important as that of common welfare, and there must be the suppression of every unlawful hindrance to the service of that cause. To the task of lawful protection and the maintenance of order, the federal government pledges to you every assistance at its command.

WARREN HARDING.

Beautiful Memorial

connected with the 104th Infantry regiment of the 26th Division. The tablet also commemorates the death of two other Massachusetts chaplains, the Rev. William E. Bayly of Holyoke and the Rev. Simon A. O'Rourke of Fall River, and the inscription on the tablet reads as follows:

"Where shells burst and men fell broken and bleeding, they calmly ministered, heroic witnesses to the power of the faith they preached."

The tablet was provided by act of the legislature as a result of a petition by the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, member of the house from Ware, who urged the historic importance of commemorating, not only the military services of the men, but the spirit of fraternity in which both Catholic and Protestant clergymen performed their duties side by side in the war.

July 19 was selected as the date for unveiling the tablet, because it is the fourth anniversary of the day on which the 104th regiment, to which two of the hero chaplains belonged, went into the front action for the first time.

Senator Raymond H. Treffry of Marshfield, chairman of the special commission which selected the form of the memorial, and a member of the Yankee division, presided at the ceremonies at the state house today. Fr. O'Connor, chaplain of the 101st Infantry and a member of the special memorial commission offered the prayers. The Rev. Mr. Sawyer, on behalf of the special commission presented the tablet to the state and Governor Cox accepted it on behalf of the commonwealth.

Representative Sawyer

"We honor these men because they were comrades of the young, clear-eyed, fighting thousands who served in the World War," said Rep. Sawyer. "The memorial is also a tribute to the highest civic spirit. These men, joined in armed conflict, not because they loved war, but because they loved their country enough to go to war. These men honor the church and the church may well honor them. No man's name was put on the place for party differences or for great personal ambitions could exist. When anyone in the future shall guide the stranger's steps and point out where men were put in the stocks, their names still or even shaved or even hanged because of religious differences, let them come into the state house and point out a tablet which depicts a Protestant minister and a Catholic priest, bonding in loving tenderness over a dying patriot, administering the last comforts of religion."

The representative said that these four chaplains were representative of all the chaplains who served the country in the great World war.

Gov. Cox's Address

"In our state house are gathered and cherished the precious relics of all the wars in which sons of Massachusetts have fought. Here are preserved the flags of country and commonwealth which they have carried to victory. Here are mementoes which tell the story of our ancestors' struggle for independence and of that happy day when valiant men returned to their homes, having completed the work of preserving the union as one and inseparable. Here is recorded the contribution of those who carried freedom and enlightenment to Cuba, to Porto Rico and to the Philippines. How appropriate that now we should commemorate the deeds of sacrifice and valor of the men of our own day and generation, who sailed to foreign shores and there fought and died that the light of hope for humanity might be kept burning as brightly as ever."

"As the representative of the people of Massachusetts and with the reverent appreciation which is in their hearts, I accept this beautiful tablet in memory of the Massachusetts chaplains who gave their lives on the altar of patriotic service to country."

Rev. Captain Walton H. Danker, Chaplain of the 104th Infantry, Lt. Col. Walter W. F. Smith, Chaplain of the 101st Infantry, Lieut. Father

INSISTS THAT LENINE WAS KILLED

STOCKHOLM, July 19.—(By The Associated Press.)—Notwithstanding the denial issued by the Soviet embassy in the world yesterday of the statement made by a Riga correspondent that he had been informed that Lenin of Soviet Russia had been poisoned, the correspondent today telegraphed his newspaper here that he had obtained confirmation of his statement. Cyanide of potassium was used the correspondent affirms.

NEWSBOYS PLAN TO FORM UNION

Twenty-two Lowell newsboys were present at the scheduled meeting in Trades and Labor hall this morning. The meeting was called for the purpose of forming a newsboy's union in the city and the boys were addressed by Charles E. Anderson, president of the Trades and Labor council. Nothing definite was accomplished, however, as Mr. Anderson and George Wolff representing the newsboys went into private consultation, the result of which was not made public.

FEDERAL AGENTS PROMISE RENEWAL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 19.—Federal prohibition agents who raided a score of refreshment places here yesterday intimated they would act again today.

Their activities put 27 bartenders and owners under arrest and accumulated thousands of quarts of whiskey; 40 kegs of wine and beer and other concoctions.

The men were each held in $1000 bail.

Children's Outing

and all carried American flags. Prior to and during the formation of the parade, Atkin's 25-piece band gave a concert and also accompanied the picknickers to the grounds and made moments musical throughout the day. The first division of the parade contained the car of the commonwealth with Gov. Chandler Cox and escort. Next in order were Congressman Rogers, Mayor Brown and Chairman Harry Pitts, followed by the real attraction—the children.

Arrive at Grounds

At the appointed hour, the destination was reached and the half-mile of cars unloading their youthful burden, and the day's activities got under way as per schedule. After checking up the kiddies, a homelike luncheon was served, and appetites, whetted by the country ozone, were quickly appeased with the ready distribution of the inviting eatables, which consisted of two ham sandwiches, a chocolate cake, a large cookie and a pickle per capita. In addition to the above, 75 gallons of ice cream were donated by the city, 12 cases of Coca-Cola, 1200 bottles of pasteurized milk made a hasty disappearance. Henry Driscoll presided at the ice cream table. D. J. MacDougall at the orangeade, E. P. Wiggins and Lewis R. Studen at the pop-corn and Harry Thompson at the May Day. The 1200 bottles of pasteurized milk were donated by Lowell milk dealers whose names have already appeared in The Sun in connection with the outing. The milk contributed a splendid contribution to the outing and was much appreciated on all sides.

A full hour's feasting completed, a Punch and Judy show was presented to the mutual amusement of youngsters and elders alike. A clown of broad proportions and of excessive avoidfulness provided additional entertainment with his contributions to the fun column and a Magnovox attachment on a Victrola recorded pleasant music.

Through the courtesy of John W. Kernan of the park department, local playground instructors had been generously loaned for the occasion to supervise athletics and teach the children games. All necessary equipment for the carrying out of this part of the program was conveniently at hand. Under the direction of Arthur Sullivan, assistant supervisor of the city's playgrounds, an endless list of sporting events and games was carried out.

Assisting in the conduct of these latter were the following: Misses May Kelley, Muriel Leach, Olga Shuy, Cynthia Ray, Mary Howard, Helen Taylor and James and Roy Lister. Miss Anne Taylor, head of the Massachusetts mills welfare work, was in attendance as nurse, and looked after the comparatively few ill of the "Hills orphans."

In the waning hours of the afternoon, the children of the French-American orphanage re-enacted the gathering with a recital of popular and patriotic airs, "La Marseillaise" being especially well rendered. Dime-store vaudeville followed, conducted by the singing with the organ and grace of a professional and was roundly applauded for his effort.

Before departing, Governor Cox addressed the gathering and paid a glowing tribute to the Rotarians, through whose united effort the success of the day was made possible. At the conclusion of his talk, the governor was accorded a rousing and resounding cheer by the children.

The silver cloud that had hovered over the pine-clad grounds had a dark lining late in the afternoon, for about 4 o'clock the envious weather cast despatched blacklike clouds in the direction of Weymouth, presaging rain. Fortunately the trucks and touring cars were again boarded in an effort to land the kiddies safely home as quickly and as possible. Thunderous peals, every one becoming more and more voluminous, heralded the approach of a coming storm which finally broke with a vengeance. With the exception of the occupants of two trucks, all of the children were under cover before the rain started. But this did not dampen their ardor, and as the truck conveying the Day Nursery children passed through the square on route to the First street home, the occupants cheered in defiance of the storm, and though soaked to the skin, their countenances revealed nothing but pleasure.

Children from the orphanages were more fortunate in that they rode in covered trucks or touring cars. Slater Ledwith of St. Peter's, who had charge of the contingent from that home, is loud in her praise of the Rotarians. Mrs. Amanda Nelson of the Day Nursery, Mrs. Mary Lambert of the O'Leary home, Sister Theophile of the French-American orphanage and Mrs. Walter Tapp of the Ayer home, all reported the utmost satisfaction over the affair and are extending congratulations to the members of the Rotary club to their kindness in behalf of the children in their care.

Big Day All Around

The day had been an eventful one for the kiddies and their guardians, and one which will be recorded in the annals of the Lowell Rotary club as one of the biggest and most productive of its many events.

The following energetic committee was in charge: Harry Pitts, chairman; Hutchins H. Parker, Walter R. Jeays, Alvin H. Weaver, William A. Mitchell, Thomas Lees, Benjamin D. Pouzner, Robert W. Thompson, Harry G. Pollard and F. Lorey Parochet.

SPLENDID WORK IN MIDDLESEX

Effective Campaign Against Tuberculosis in Towns Nearby Lowell

Modern Health Crusade in Schools Pertinent Factor in Success Attained

Citizens of Middlesex will be interested in the results of the Massachusetts Tuberculosis league of Miss A. Gertrude Hines, field worker for the league in the northern portion of the county. The league undertakes this work in co-operation with the North Middlesex county tuberculosis association and the Massachusetts state department of public health. This combination secures effective work for the smaller towns and avoids duplication of effort. It also secures for the examination clinics, an institution that the advice of the expert physicians attached to the state sanatoria for the benefit of the children.

Work has been done in no less than a dozen of the towns of northern Middlesex, some of the details of which follow. These constitute a story of help, the children of families of moderate or little fortune financially. An ambitious program has been outlined by the league, which includes the organization of the Modern Health Crusade in the schools, follow-up of tuberculosis cases, towns where there is no local nurse to do the work, by arranging local nurses by advice and by arranging for the examination of suspicious cases, arranging examination clinics for under-nourished children, and the follow-up in watching these children and helping their mothers carry out the instructions of the physicians.

The work in the towns has not been along stereotyped lines, but has been intelligently modified to fit the needs of the individual town. In Tyngsboro with the co-operation of the school physician, Dr. Lambert, and the school nurse, Mrs. Michael, the Modern Health Crusade was introduced into the schools, the children were weighed and measured and the underweight little ones were given a mid-morning lunch by the local association. In June, when preparations were made for the examining clinic, it was found that most of the children had gained and were normal. At the clinic in June, however, 18 children were examined. In Dunstable the school children were weighed and measured and 22 were found to be more than 8 per cent below normal. An examining clinic was arranged with 14 children attending.

A Slow the Modern Health Crusade was organized and is to be continued next year on account of the interest of teachers and children. Grades 1, 2 and 3 in the schools made posters and the children in 4, 5 and 6 presented a health play. Adult tuberculosis cases were followed up and resident cases are under observation.

In Townsend reported cases of tuberculosis have been followed up. It is expected that in the fall there will be a town school nurse and Modern Health Crusade work will be started as well as nutrition classes. Clinton is to begin the Modern Health Crusade in the fall. In Acron there has been found a case of tubercular father with two small children and efforts have been made to get the physician to induce the father to enter a sanatorium. Otherwise the children are likely to become infected.

In Roxbury the children of four rural schools were weighed and measured. Ten per cent were found to be seriously underweight. The crusade was organized in the spring in the schools. In Attitash, the Acron has been helped by advice in arranging the clinics. The same is true in Chelmsford with the nurse appointed this spring. In Carlisle an outbreak of diphtheria closed the schools, preventing the weighing and measuring that was in immediate prospect. In Burlington the nurse has only recently been appointed, so that work here is in prospect.

Preparations were made in Hilderley for an examining clinic, but on account of misunderstanding it has been postponed till fall. The work of the crusade was organized last fall, with more than 100 children earning the advanced order of Knight. Children in a number of schools were weighed and measured, leading up to the examination clinic of June 27, which was attended by 46 children.

The programs for the coming season will include the continuation of past efforts, and it is hoped to include a series of nutrition classes based on the work of Dr. W. R. P. Emerson of Boston.

North Middlesex county has every reason to be proud of the work accomplished in its smaller municipalities, and the report of Miss Hines is evidence of the activity of the league, which is a federation of local tuberculosis associations, helping in projects too difficult to be undertaken by single towns, and bringing to their benefit all the latest and best thought in this all-important matter, the war against tuberculosis.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

A very pretty miscellaneous shower was held last evening in honor of Miss Adelaide Harnden of 305 Fairmount street, who is soon to become the bride of Mr. Hugh Gallagher, a popular young resident of Centralville. The special feature of the evening was a mock marriage. Miss May Haring taking part of the bride and Miss Florence Donahue, the groom. Solos were rendered by Miss Anna Powers and Miss Mollie Bourke. Miss Helen Birchell entertained with a specialty dance and Mrs. Tully and Miss Mary Gallagher recited. Miss Harnden received many beautiful and useful gifts. A buffet luncheon was served and the party broke up at a late hour, everyone wishing the bride to be much happier. The affair was in charge of Miss Alice Thomas and Miss Florence Harnden.

The Industrial accident board is doing a lot of good work at the present time in trying to place the injured employee back in industry and on jobs that are suitable for them. It might be advisable for each mill to consider every accident case and ascertain whether or not the injured employee was properly placed when he first came to work. Such a procedure would undoubtedly result in the saving of a good many days' lost time to the employee, and also in a saving to the mill.

WOULD WORK INJURY TO STATE OF MAINE

BANGOR, Me., July 19.—Declaring that absentee landlordism has never been a success, President Percy R. Todd of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad stated at a hearing yesterday before the state committee on the New England consolidation that either one of the two plans presented would work great injury to the state of Maine. With the Maine roads in the hands of directors living outside the state, this section, he said, could hope for little consideration, especially in dealings in which the adjacent sections are in competition.

LECTURE AT COLONIAL HALL

Last night in Colonial Hall the third lecture on applied psychology, "How to Make More Money," was attended by a large audience who disregarded weather conditions to be present. The essentials of health, preparation and mental attitude, etc., were discussed in a comprehensive manner. Tonight will be devoted to the matter of building up a winning personality. Several of those who have attended all three lectures announced last evening that they already felt an increase in health.

OSBORNE APPOINTED
BOSTON, July 19.—Federal Judge Mack today appointed Lyman P. Osborne of Penobscot as receiver of Budget, Harrigan & Co., leather manufacturers of that city.

MAY RECEIVE MEDAL

Springfield Soldier at Camp Devens in Line for More Honors

CAMP DEVENS, July 19.—Coinciding with the announcement by the doctors that, unless something unforeseen develops, he stands an excellent chance of complete recovery, Private William E. Davis, of 173 Williams street, Springfield, overseas veteran, member of 101st Motor Transport Company, 26th Division Trains, M.C.O., yesterday received a personal letter from the general commanding the Massachusetts brigade, which letter was afterwards published throughout the entire command.

Davis was nearly burned to death last Sunday, when he saved more than 30 motor trucks from burning. By his heroic act he undoubtedly prevented the explosion of 150 gallons of gasoline. Gov. Cox is to receive a formal report of the whole affair with the general's recommendation that Massachusetts shall award Davis a Distinguished Service Medal.

In part the general's letter to Davis follows: "In behalf of the 3000 officers and men of the National Guard now on duty at Camp Devens, Mass., I desire to express to you our sincere appreciation and pride in the remarkable heroism and self-sacrifice exhibited by you on July 15.

"It is because of the exhibits of such courage and devotion to the safety of others that the people of this state have been proud of their soldiery and glad to confer upon them the privilege, with its accompanying responsibility, of bearing in peace as in war, the name of this great Commonwealth. You by your conduct in sacrificing promptly and bravely your own safety that the lives of your comrades might not be further endangered have further added to the glorious deeds of heroes."

Since early yesterday morning the booming of guns and the chatter of rifles and machine guns have echoed throughout this camp, and an airplane could be heard above all the other din. The Massachusetts men had their first taste this year of combat work. The entire 101st Regiment was on the main parade field at 8 o'clock, and they made an attack on an imaginary enemy.

They were supported by field artillery which fired blank shells from 75-millimeter guns. Overhead circled an airplane from Mineola, and the Massachusetts men signaled the flyer by means of rockets and panels, the signals being passed by the airplane by wireless to the headquarters in the rear of the attacking troops.

It is very realistic and thoroughly enjoyed by the men, despite the withering heat, which was intense even during the early hours of the morning, and while increased in intensity as the day wore on, until yesterday was nearly as hot as a week ago yesterday, when a number of men collapsed.

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLDS
SKILLED AS CROOKS

PITTSFIELD, July 19.—Judge Thayer of Worcester, in superior court yesterday, afternoon, stated that in recent years he has discovered three skill in crime in boys ranging from 10 to 18 years of age, than was formerly found in men who had spent all their lives in criminal acts. Only recently, he said, parents brought before him 11-year-old twins who were skilled as crooks.

The judge's talk was addressed to Summer Hill, an 18-year-old lad with a court record, who was in court charged with breaking and entering. He was found guilty and sentenced to the house of correction for seven months.

The average individual remembers three-fifths of what he sees and one-fifth of what he hears.

MILL HAZARDS AND
HOW TO AVOID THEM

Issued by the Massachusetts Safety Council

By E. E. PLACE, the Employers' Liability Assurance Corp., Ltd.

One phase of accident work that has not been given a great deal of consideration to date is the proper placing of the employee at his work.

Until recently most concerns, including textile mills, have been inclined to let each overseas hire his own help without any instruction. Sometimes the employees were chosen without thought as to whether or not they were suitable for the job that was open. Other overseers have learned by their long experience just what physical and mental characteristics and traits were necessary for the proper carrying out of the work in their department. Many of the overseers seldom used any other method except the old-fashioned one of "cut and try." By this we mean the hiring of an employee and later, if he did not prove satisfactory, his release and the hiring of another.

Most textile mills are beginning to realize that the employee who has frequent accidents is an expensive man for the mill to have on its payroll. By accidents we mean accidents that involve lost time and which require the doubling up in the room or the replacing of the injured worker with another.

Lately more and more attention has been paid to the correct placing of the worker in order to make sure that he would not have to be replaced in a short time. This was especially true during the war when the supply of labor was small, and when most employees were doing all they possibly could to keep their workers from being lost.

There are various characteristics that should be considered in placing a man in the textile industry. It is essential that the inspectors in the clothroom have good eyesight. It is also true that spooler tenders have very quick and agile fingers in order that they may keep their ends up and so get out the maximum production. For yardmen and those who are obliged to handle the bales of cotton, a strong, healthy man is required, who is not too old or yet too young.

It is necessary to employ the right type of man in the finishing room, especially around the calendars, where the heavy rolls of cloth are lifted and also where the cloth is run through the calendar rolls. This job requires a man who is able to stand up under the steady strain of lifting and yet who is quick enough to keep his fingers out of the calendar rolls.

Then there is the purely mental type of worker, such as shipping clerks, overseers, clerks and so forth, who are not required to do any physical work, but have a considerable amount of writing and figuring.

One of the greatest difficulties comes in the placing of the wrong type of employee on heavy jobs such as lifting heavy bales of cotton, boxes of rovings, rolls of cloth, warps and so forth. The strain of lifting and yet considerable exertion in the way of lifting, pulling or pushing, and for individuals who have not been previously so employed it is often hazardous.

As a large portion of all hernias occurs from the improper placing of the employee on the above jobs, employers in general should use good judgment in considering applicants for this kind of work. If the object to be moved seems too heavy to be handled safely without more help, extra help should be obtained. Falls, including tripping, stumbling and slipping, sometimes produce bodily strain that results in a large amount of lost time.

Great care should be used in placing young employees under the age of 21 in order to make sure that they are not put on jobs that require an undue amount of physical exertion. A large number of lost time accidents could be avoided if the younger employees are watched to see that they report instantly all minor cuts, splinters, etc., so that infections will not result.

In one instance there were two deaths, which resulted from the improper placing of employees. One man over 75 was required to carry a large amount of roving from one floor to another, and the strain proved too much for his heart. The other case was where a man of advanced age was watching in the piling of cotton in the cotton shed and in trying to

GREAT DEMAND FOR NOMINATION PAPERS

(Special to The Sun)
BOSTON, July 19.—Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook states that up to date he has distributed to candidates for office 50,000 nomination papers as against 30,000 two years ago. Evidently voters are going to have an abundance of candidates to pick from in the elections this year. In addition to the primary papers the secretary has issued 1000 papers to independent candidates, who are not going to enter the primaries but who make their debut election day.

The largest number of papers taken out by any particular candidate is by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge in whose interest 3000 papers are in circulation. Senator Lodge is required by law to secure only 1000 signatures but it is expected that the remainder of his papers will be used for local endorsement.

FREIGHT CARS PILE UP IN MARSHES

WEST SCARBORO, Me., July 19.—Thirteen loaded freight cars from a train bound for Portland from Boston were piled up on the marshes one mile east of here today on the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad. No one was hurt.

Traffic at that point was blocked the greater part of the day, trains being sent over the western division at "Merrimack cut."

A brakeman was said to have been responsible for the wreck.

MAY RETURN MONEY TO WAR PROFITEERS

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Passage of a bill by Senator Ekins, republican, West Virginia, to remit the fines of persons convicted during the war of profiteering in food has been recommended by the department of justice.

Robert H. Lowell, assistant attorney general, has advised the legislation in view of the fact that the supreme court declared void a section of the food control act, under which fines were imposed. The court's decision gave convicted persons the right to sue for return of their paid.

REO SPEED WAGON

One of the big features of the Reo Speed Wagon is its truly marvellous motor. If there is really any one unit that more than any other, accounts for the stamina and the long life of the Reo Speed Wagon, it is in the power plant. The Reo Service Station, 660 Middlesex street, now under the management of Mr. Daniel E. McQuinn, who is well known in Lowell that he needs little or no introduction, reports many sales, and prospective truck buyers take a step in the right direction by getting in touch with the Reo people, and have their explain and demonstrate the many advantages and super features of the Reo Speed Wagon.

AUTO NEWS

Tomorrow the plant of Bibeault & Stevens, Middlesex street, will be shut down tight, for early in the morning the employees of the place will start on an all-day trip to Provincetown and return.

The Donovan Harness and Auto Supply company, Market street, is offering very attractive prices on tires. They have probably one of the finest lines to choose from in the way of accessories to be found in New England.

Pelton & Otter are kept busy this weather and the increased driving is apparent at their place of business in Third street.

Lunchers Sprayed By Spring

NEW YORK, July 19.—While scores were eating in a restaurant near Bryant Park a bit of tiling from the floor with a pop like that of a champagne cork, mounted ceilingward, pushed by a stream of water that drenched guests at surrounding tables and flooded the dining room. No leaks in the pipes could be located. Engineers said the water came from springs that used to flow through the park nearby, but had been diverted in building construction work.

GREATEST INCREASE MYSTERY IN BURIAL OF UNRECORDED BODY

Membership of Buildings and Loan Associations Makes Big Gains

PORTLAND, Me., July 19.—The greatest increase in the membership of buildings and loan associations ever recorded in a year, was reported for last year by H. P. Cellarius of Cincinnati, secretary of the United States league of local building and loan associations at the annual meeting of the league today.

"Eight hundred and forty-seven thousand new members were enrolled in the United States last year," he said, "an increase of more than 17 per cent. The total membership now numbers 5,899,888. Total resources of these associations are $2,890,764,621, or net increase for the year of $370,849,650, or nearly 15 per cent."

The housing shortage has not been relieved although building associations have been drawn upon to the fullest for loans for these purposes. Unfortunately unemployment caused a greater volume of withdrawal than ordinary and this reduced the amount applicable for mortgage loans. During 1920 the building associations loaned $770,000,000 for home buying or home owning purposes, but last year only about $693,000,000 of these funds could be thus invested. The current year is showing a substantial improvement."

WOBURN, July 19.—Officers of the Congregational Anshel Liebovitz cemetery had a mystery on their hands today in the finding in the cemetery of a body, for the burial of which there was no record.

Harry Kritzer, caretaker of the burying ground, dropped dead last Monday after being confronted by the undertaker's assistant whom he had accused of bringing the body to the cemetery without a burial permit last Saturday. Morris Gold, the assistant, flatly denied Kritzer's statements.

Grave diggers last week found that a casket had been buried in a plot which, according to the records, was empty. When Kritzer was questioned as to the body's presence, he told officers of the cemetery association that Gold, in bringing the casket to the burying ground, had said he would mail the permit, but he never did so. At this juncture Gold drove into the cemetery and was brought before Kritzer. The caretaker is said to have pointed a finger at the assistant and then toppled to the ground. He died within an hour.

AMNESTY PETITION SIGNED BY MILLION

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Approximately a million signatures were said to be attached to the petition asking a grant of amnesty to the remaining 87 "war opinion" prisoners, which was brought here by a delegation today for presentation to President Harding. The petition was circulated by the general defense committee of Chicago. Members of the delegation included Morris Hillquit of New York and Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, wife of the senator from Wisconsin.

ROBBED OF $230; SAILORS ARRESTED

BOSTON, July 19.—Edward Tymark of North Amherst, N. J., who arrived here by boat early today was attacked and robbed of $230 by three sailors when he stepped into a doorway in the financial district to escape a severe electrical storm. He called for help as soon as his attackers left him and three sailors found nearby were arrested. Police said that a sum of money which was identified by Tymark as that taken from him was found in the patrol which took the sailors to the police station.

To Have Farmers' Government

WINNIPEG, Man., July 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Manitoba is to have a government of united farmers as a result of elections today, the voters refusing the liberal government of Premier Norris a vote of confidence. Premier Norris was elected in his own constituency, but three of his colleagues went down to defeat.

13 Injured By Steam

PORT ANGELES, Wash., July 19.—Exploding steam pipes in the battleship New York scalded one man, rendered 12 others unconscious and nearly caused a collision between the flagship and the destroyer McDermott, as the fleet was returning to this port from maneuvers last night.

League Meeting Private

LONDON, July 19.—(By the Associated Press)—The announcement over night that today's meeting of the Council of the League of Nations, would be private, brought forth renewed expressions of disappointment because it was understood that the subject for discussion would be the Palestine and Syrian mandates which the opponents of privacy contend are particularly susceptible to the evils of diplomatic bargaining. The chief opposition to these mandates has been expected from Italy.

A MENACE TO HEALTH

Recently we have received considerable propaganda in opposition to a bill passed by the national house and now before the senate agriculture committee, the aim of which is to prohibit the shipment of skimmed milk compounds on the ground that they are adulterated and deleterious articles of food and, therefore, a menace to the public health.

We are certainly in favor of the bill and hope it will pass for the reason that thousands of poor people who do not know the worthless use of skim-milk as a food would use it for children and otherwise to the detriment of their health. Instances are not lacking where poor people have suffered irreparable injury by using skimmed milk in much the same way as proposed here.

About twenty years ago, or a little more, a great number of co-operative creameries were established in Ireland. Previously the farmers had made their own butter for the market and used buttermilk freely in the family and sweet milk in its entirety for young children. But after they began to skim the milk and send the cream to the creameries, very little whole milk was kept, and instead of buttermilk, the skimmed milk was used. As a result the children and many young people of both sexes soon began to show signs of being undernourished. Soon consumption became prevalent and the death rate from this disease was greater than ever before, greater than in most other countries of the world. The doctors and statesmen began to investigate and very promptly it was found that this state of debility resulted from the use of skimmed milk instead of buttermilk and whole milk.

The people had learned an expensive lesson, and it took a long time to pull down the high rate of deaths from consumption.

The same would happen in any country where the people are poor and where skim-milk products, ingeniously compounded, deceive the unwary when offered for sale.

TEACH ALL TO SWIM

The unfortunate fatality at the municipal bathhouse yesterday goes to swell the evidence that this swimming pool is too dangerous for boys or those who are not expert swimmers. It is all right for a few yards from the shore but beyond that point the water suddenly deepens so that a great many youngsters get beyond their depth before they know it and if they cannot swim or if they venture out for a little distance and become exhausted they are exposed to danger of drowning unless relief is at hand. It seems that the park department should keep a life saver at the swimming pool from early morning until late at night. The department cannot be held responsible for the death of the victim in yesterday's drowning, but notices should be posted prohibiting bathing in the swimming pool except when the life savers are on duty.

This additional fatality is but another proof of what we suggested as a necessary step in teaching all children to swim. This could be done without danger to anybody in the pond on the South common if the water were just a little deeper. There could be no better place for teaching children to swim than this pond and if an instructor were there for certain hours every day, we venture to say that he would have a large number of pupils anxious to learn the water art. Parents would readily send their children to the South common, but they will not allow them to go to the municipal swimming pool for fear that they cannot be blamed in view of what has happened.

INSTITUTE OF POLITICS

The second annual Institute of Politics to be held at Williamstown in this state from July 23 to Aug. 26 will be an event or series of events that will attract attention not only throughout the United States but in other countries for the reason that the list of lecturers embraces prominent speakers from all the leading countries of Europe and at least one from Japan. Harry A. Garfield, chairman of the Institute, will have a big job on his hands in arranging the various elements represented in the program. David F. Houston, former secretary of the treasury, will take a prominent part in the discussion and in this he will be associated with Paul M. Warburg, the well known banker of New York. "A British Outlook of the International Scene" will be the topic chosen for six public lectures by Lionel Curtis, who served as secretary of the Irish peace conference. According to reports, this second session of the Institute will comprise some three hundred leaders in the field of political science, representing 26 states and numerous foreign countries. The Institute lives on publicity and doubtless the newspapers will give considerable space to many of the speakers inasmuch as it appears that some very delicate subjects are set down for discussion. It is probable that there will be a great output of propaganda for various international schemes and modern reforms as the proponents of such movements never lose an opportunity of that kind to advance their cause.

TO SETTLE STRIKES

The Lawrence city council after a conference with representatives of the United Textile Workers of America adopted a resolution expressing the belief that the textile strike should be arbitrated before an impartial board. It was also voted to notify Governor Cox of the action taken with a view to interesting the state authorities in the possibility of settling the labor conflict at Lawrence. The state board of arbitration and conciliation is powerless to render any assistance in settling the strike for the reason that it has no authority to interfere unless requested by both parties in the controversy. The laws should be changed in this respect so that where a conflict is prolonged as in the case of these textile strikes the board would be empowered to force a settlement through arbitration. With such power used discreetly, a great many of the long drawn out conflicts could be quickly terminated and both parties thereby benefited. It would seem that the necessities of the present situation call for such a law and that if our legislators wish to promote industrial peace, they should make an effort to place such a law on the statute books of Massachusetts.

BUYING AND SELLING

The average shoe dealer last year lost money, the loss being about two per cent of net sales, according to a bureau of business research of Harvard University.

Even when prices were highest, many retail merchants lost money, due partly to unfair practices by customers—such as getting a spool of thread delivered five miles or returning garments after wearing them once to a dance.

We need schools to teach people how to buy scientifically, more than we need schools of scientific salesmanship.

A four-year course in training students to be hotel managers will be started by Cornell University.

We need similar schools for every industry. Few men who go into business for themselves make a success of it because it takes them a lifetime to learn what a school could teach in a few years.

To learn merchandising and management is harder than mastering astronomy or analytical trigonometry. It looks easy until you try it—as every apprentice finds when he is learning his trade.

LLOYD GEORGE'S DRESS

London tailors, the dictators of style in the higher classes of London society and sticklers for conventionalism in dress, are horrified at the boldness of Premier Lloyd George in wearing a light gray suit while attending high official functions. Nothing of this kind was ever attempted by any other British premier in the memory of those now living; but Lloyd George has done many things that his predecessors in office would never think of attempting. The present premier has lately paid particular attention to his dress, but he has not followed the mandates of the dictators of style, whereas they are much annoyed. They must realize that Lloyd George is fast becoming a law unto himself in reference to the observance of the stereotyped customs. He has an idea that personal comfort and good taste should have more weight in deciding the summer raiment than the dictum of the tailors who have become the arbiters of style in men's wear but only for those who wish to accept their dictation and pay the price.

CANCELLING WAR DEBTS

Premier Lloyd George has made the statement that England will never be able to pay the United States' war loan. It is not very long since another high British authority stated that England would pay her indebtedness to the United States to the last dollar. Nevertheless the movement for cancellation proceeds and it is prolonging the movement for the refunding of the debt, which has been under way now for over six months.

Germany wants a reduction in the indemnity prescribed by the allies from 132 to 50 billion gold marks. England is willing to concede Germany's demand and promises to cancel the French debt to her, but then comes a corollary that it would be necessary for the United States to cancel its loans to England. There is the difficulty.

AGENT AND OPERATIVES

Nothing has been said or done since our local mill troubles started to show such a good feeling on the part of the operatives for their employers as the expressions of regret by the strikers in leaving the Massachusetts mills, that conditions obliged them to strike in a mill conducted by an agent who had shown such great personal interest in their welfare. But they blamed the system and the higher officials, not the agent. Moreover, this expression of regret by the operatives showed a fine sense of intelligent and humane appreciation of the friendly rebound of friendship that exists between employer and employed. But the strike, it is plain, will not sever the bond of friendship that exists between Agent Mitchell and his employees.

OLD GAMES COME BACK

More than 1,000,000 Americans have taken up horseshoe pitching, says the magazine Horsehoes World. This ancient game still runs neck-and-neck with radio. Horseshoe pitchers will hold their national tournament at Des Moines, Ia., beginning August 28.

Croquet is another old-fashioned game that is sweeping back into popularity. The best metropolitan sporting goods houses are selling croquet outfits. Pads always come back, like the rubber ball you used to bounce against the barn, back home.

The Hague conference is at the point of collapse over the failure of Russia to offer guarantees and conditions that the other conferees could accept. So much the worse for Russia.

"Come, gentlemen," says the president to the miners, "open up and begin digging coal," and they will begin.

Sunday's loss of life by drownings and auto fatalities was appalling.

SEEN AND HEARD

The tariff boosts wool and the strike boosts coal. It will be easy to keep cool next winter.

"He knocked me down 30 times," said a Kentucky woman asking for divorce. Thirty is too many.

If the children of the local orphanage should be asked their favorite club, would they say "Rotary"?

Lowell high school has asked little enough of her alumni in the past, let's not throw her down now.

When it is too awfully hot, think back to the cold of the winter when you longed for a sign of summer.

The Sound of a Voice

Joseph Lupier, blind musician, has an unusually keen memory for voices. At a concert last week he instantly recalled the voice of a friend whom he had not heard in 11 years. "I'll bet you don't know who I am," said James Sawin of Detroit, clapping Mr. Lupier on the back. "You're Jim Sawin," said the blind man. "You were leader of the minstrel troupe I was with 11 years ago."

Use Your Head

A woodpecker picks out a great many pecks. Of sawdust when building a hut. He works like a young man of a hole bigger. And he's sore if his cutter won't cut. He won't bother with plans of cheap artisans.

But there's one thing can rightly be said. The whole excavation has this explanation. He builds it by using his head.

Throw Her Into High!

The new era that is upon us will be an era of unbelievable speed. The following incident is not fiction; it's a prophecy. A young man of A. D. 1950 took an ailing, 2000-horse-power airplane. "That's England we're approaching," he said. They lived in Australia. "British Isles, you know. Pretty little group, they make, don't they?" "I don't see them," said the girl anxiously. "Where are they?" "O," said the young man, "we've passed them now!"

Who Said, "Back to the Farm?"

Stopping his plow at noon a few days ago, the son of W. A. Glaze, a farmer in Bland, Mo., went to the house for dinner. On his return he almost stepped over the brink of a cavern 20 feet across and so deep he couldn't see the bottom. The dirt was still tumbling in, but during a lull a crowd of men and boys dropped a rope into the huge hole and found it 112 feet to the bottom. The plow hasn't been recovered as yet and if the underground cavern alarms much more ground there won't be any farm left.

Advanced Mathematics

The eergeant-major was reaching the end of his patience in his examination of the recruits' square. "For the last time," he yelled, going almost purple in the face, "I ask you the simple question. What is a fortification?"

Shoulders dropped and with faces void of intelligence as a vacuum of air, the recruits stood fast as a man.

Rushing up to the most intelligent looking man, the late N.C.O. bawled: "Come, my man, what is a fortification?"

The answer came like a cork out of a bottle: "Two twentifications, sir."

Today's Word

Today's word is "Incalculable." It's pronounced in-kal-ku-lah-bil, with the accent on the second syllable. "The i and first a are short. The u is as the u in unite, and the final n is the n in ask."

It means—beyond calculation or reckoning; not to be calculated.

It is a combination of in, meaning not, and calculable, meaning capable of being reckoned. Calculable comes from the Latin calculare, obtained from calculus, a pebble. Pebbles were used by the Romans in reckoning and casting accounts.

It's used like this—"The harm which would result from a prolonged tie-up of the nation's railroads is incalculable."

A Thought

Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of man is fully set in them to do evil.—Ecclesiastes 8:11.

He stood upon the world's broad threshold; wide.

The din of battle and of slaughter.

He saw God stand upon the weaker side.

That sank in towering loss before its foes.

Many there were who made great haste and sold.

Unto the cunning enemy their swords.

He scorned their gifts of fame and power and gold.

And underneath their soft and flowery words.

Heard the cold serpent hiss; therefore he went.

And humbly joined him to the weaker part.

—JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

Too bad the outing for the orphans of the city by the Rotary club should have been a larger one, with by such a terrific thunder storm. The Rotarians did everything possible to give the children an ideal day's outing and that it certainly was until the storm came.

I notice that the sentiment everywhere throughout the city is strongly in favor of a high school athletic field. The cost will be insignificant as compared with the vast benefits to be derived by the youth of our city in the years to come.

The miniature cloudbursts of last night were the cause of some bad washouts on the Lawrence boulevard. They were particularly bad in the Glenn Forest section as there is an abrupt hill along one side of the street. At each intersecting street there tons and tons of sand had been washed down the hill, completely covering the boulevard in some places. The tracks to Victory park, a dance hall in Glenn forest, were entirely buried and the car service had to be abandoned. The section of the street in front of the Lawrence water works was flooded and the water was even with the curbing. Several warning lights were placed there by city department map to acquaint the passing machines of the bad stretch. The water was so high that it seemed as though one were attempting to ford a stream.

There are on an average of 701 people to every square mile in England.

Foss Announces Campaign Issue

BOSTON, July 19.—Former Governor Eugene N. Foss, who last night became the fourth candidate for the democratic nomination for governor, announced today that he would make his campaign on the tariff issue. "The tariff is the big issue in this campaign," said Mr. Foss. "Senator Lodge in his speeches at Boston and Springfield said the issue upon which the republican administration will seek validation is the tariff and I for one, am willing to accept that issue. The tariff bill now pending is distinctly hostile to the business interests of Massachusetts and all New England," he said.

BULLET HALTS BOY WHOM POLICE WANT

NORTH ADAMS, July 19.—Gilbert McCusky, 17, a state charge who had been working for W. H. Crews as a garbage collector, was arrested yesterday afternoon, after he had been halted by a bullet from the pistol of Officer G. B. Chilson, who was searching for him. It is claimed McCusky was detected in the act of trying to break into the home of W. K. Greer on Holbrook street, yesterday morning. McCusky was seen by R. W. Illingsworth, a mail carrier, who called to him. He ran through back yards and escaped, eluding several men who were chasing him. He was later seen in lower State street and the officers went after him. He ran from a barn and across a field. Officer Chilson drew his pistol and fired a shot. The bullet went through the boy's blouse. He dropped, then submitted to arrest. At the police station he cried bitterly, declaring he could not help stealing. He is said to have admitted breaking into the homes of F. L. Dillon and L. A. Norcutt.

HALSEY WINS $2500 FOR FALSE ARREST

NEW YORK, July 19.—Raymond D. Halsey, a book salesman, yesterday won a long fight against the Society for the Suppression of Vice when the court of appeals upheld an award of $2500 made by a jury in the supreme court against the society for a false arrest of Halsey when he sold a copy of Gautier's "Mademoiselle de Maupin."

When he was acquitted of the charge of selling indecent literature, Mr. Halsey instituted suit for damages. At the first trial he obtained a verdict for $1800. The society succeeded in having this suit set aside on a technicality.

In the fall of 1920 a second trial was started, and a supreme court jury after reading "Mademoiselle de Maupin," decided that Halsey's arrest for selling the book was worth $700 more than the first jury awarded. It was this verdict which the court of appeals has upheld.

NUMBER MISLED BY OIL STOCKS

WASHINGTON, July 19.—An order to discontinue "false representations" in connection with the sale of oil stocks and securities has been issued by the Federal Trade commission against S. E. Cox, his wife and the Prudential Oil Co., all of Houston, Tex. The Prudential Oil & Refining, the Prudential Security Oil and the General Oil companies, all said to be promoted and controlled by the three respondents also were named. The commission said 1100 persons were shown by its investigation and hearings "probably to have been misled and deceived in the purchase of stock of the companies."

PORTLAND MEN FIGHT EXTRADITION

PORTLAND, July 19.—Extradition to Boston of Seth P. H. Carr, real estate dealer, and John Farr, bank manager, of this city, under indictment by the Suffolk county court of Massachusetts, will be argued before Governor Baxter at Augusta today. The men are under $1000 bond each to the municipal court here as fugitives from justice, pending the extradition proceedings. Bench warrants were issued by the Boston court in connection with the indictment which charges the men with receiving stolen automobiles. The automobiles had been sold to Guy E. Barker, formerly connected with the D. & R. Motor Sales company of Portland by the P. A. Danton Motor company of Boston, and as $5000 check given in payment was worthless, it is said. The purchase of property with the worthless check constitutes grand larceny under the Massachusetts laws. An indictment on this charge was returned in the Boston court against Barker. Both men say they will contest extradition.

The month of August was named after the Roman emperor, Augustus.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

PROPHECY

In clubs and grills the toppers wait
Because they cannot still obtain
Their whiskey, beer and wine and ale
As when the land was wet as rain.
"Ah, well," they say, "this thing will wane,
In time we'll have the hooch we lack."
But though they talk in such a strain,
John Barleycorn ain't coming back.

Though you "can get it" sure enough,
If you will pay four prices for it,
It's terrible man-killing stuff
And folks with any sense abhor it;
Adown their throats the old soaks pour it,
But not with any joyous snack.
It is a fact, though some deplore it,
John Barleycorn ain't coming back.

For even bootleg hooch grows less
And worse as weeks and months go by;
In spite of hopes the soaks express,
The country's slowly getting dry.
The wels may grumble, moan and sigh
With thirsty tongues that parch and crack,
But here's the answer to their cry,
"John Barleycorn ain't coming back!"

Secretary Denby Has Narrow Escape

PEKING, July 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Secretary Edwin Denby of the American navy, narrowly escaped death here this afternoon in an airplane accident. He was flying at a height of 4000 feet over the Great Wall, when the engine of the plane broke down. The machine was demolished in landing but Mr. Denby was uninjured.

New Ideas in Tire Chains Make Touring Easy

Ease in attaching skid chains, security after attachment, greater gripping ability, are three ideas introduced in the manufacture of the latest in products for automobile tires. All have the main purpose in mind making touring over muddy roads wet pavements safer and less troublesome.

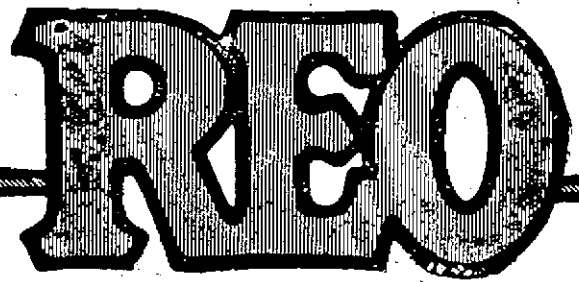

Actual experience gave a wholesale grocery salesman an idea for a skid chain, for the patent rights of which says he has had an offer of $100,000. The salesman is Raymond L. Pepper, Fairmont, W. Va. He had to make daily trips over the rough West Virginia hill roads and on rainy days as stuck many a time in the mud. He slipped and skidded over these highways until the big idea came to him.

It was the manufacture of a skid chain with two additional chains running through the cross-links along each side of the tire. The additional chain lines proved a great help in getting Pepper out of the mud and up the slippery hills. He has patented the idea and is manufacturing the chain. Better grip is also included in the design of two popular chains, but the chief novelty about these consists in a lever-like arrangement by which it is easier to attach the chain to the tire. By this attachment the chain is pulled tight and locked securely.

Dates for Postal Conferences Decided

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Dates for postal conference conventions to be held in every state during the year were announced today when postmaster Gen. Work designated the cities selected for the meetings. Conventions will be held in the following New England cities: Portland, Me., Sept. 16; Providence, R. I., June 7; Boston, July 15; Rutland, Vt., Aug. 6; and Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 30.

SPEED WAGON

A TRULY MARVELOUS MOTOR!

If there is any one unit that, more than any other, accounts for the stamina and the long life of the Reo Speed Wagon, it is the power plant. We maintain that no other motor—and certainly none of lighter construction—can stand up beside this great Reo engine.

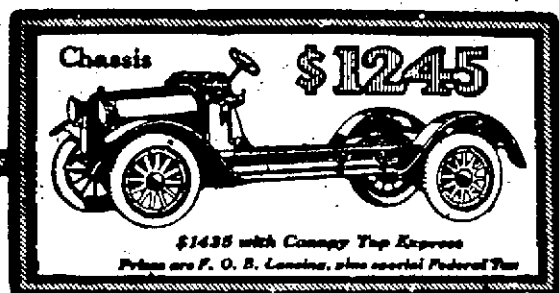

Experienced users—owners of individual trucks and of fleets—endorse our contention by standardizing on Reo Speed Wagons.

A matchless combination of brutal ruggedness in design, and of watch-work fineness in construction, this Reo motor has proven equal to the most strenuous work over a long period of years.

Until you have found an equal for this motor, it is futile to look for a truck that will stand up beside a Reo Speed Wagon.

DANA IS SHOWING

NEW CADILLAC CARS

The automobile editor in his rounds finds Geo. R. Dana & Son, the Cadillac representatives, very busy in both sales and service. Dana, Sr., says the past eight months have been a repletion of conditions which have prevailed more often than otherwise the past eight years in that it has been very difficult to supply Cadillac cars without troublesome delays notwithstanding the factory has built more cars since January 1st than ever before in a like period in their history.

Dana & Son have, however, just succeeded, after months of endeavor, in securing for stock four models of the new type of car and which they offer for immediate delivery. The success proof of its qualifications as a fine motor car and of which the current type is a splendid example. Inspection, demonstration or personal use of the new car by responsible parties is invited. The Dana Ad. appears in this issue of The Sun.

HITCHCOCK IS RENOMINATED

Democratic Senator Sweeps All Before Him in Nebraska Primaries

R. B. Howell is Republicans' Choice for United States Senator

OMAHA, Neb., July 19 (By the Associated Press).—Senator G. M. Hitchcock and R. B. Howell, republican national committeeman, were nominated at yesterday's statewide primaries as democratic and republican candidates, respectively, for United States senator.

Senator Hitchcock's victory was sweeping. The combined vote of his two opponents, on the face of returns from approximately one-third of the state, was about half that cast for the incumbent senator.

The race between Dan R. Butler of Omaha and Charles W. Bryan, brother of William Jennings Bryan, for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, showed Butler leading, with slightly more than one-third of the state heard from.

In the republican race for the nomination for governor, only a few hundred votes separated Charles H. Randolph of Randolph and Adam McMullen of Beatrice.

Renomination of Congressman Robert C. Evans of the third congressional district on the republican ticket, and Congressman M. O. Laughlin of the fourth district was indicated.

In the second district, James H. Hanley of Omaha, former prohibition director for Nebraska, was nominated over his only opponent, Charles O. Anderson, also of Omaha, in the democratic race. W. C. Saxe of Omaha was named by the republicans.

Edgar Howard of Columbus, a newspaper publisher and former lieutenant governor, apparently was nominated over F. F. O'Garra of Hartington, in the democratic third district congressional race.

Mrs. Irene C. Buell of Ashland, who sought democratic nomination in the fourth district, was running third. H. B. Cummings of Seward was first with Clifford Fall of Beatrice second. In the first district, Walter L. Anderson of Lincoln had a rather commanding lead.

ONE MOSQUITO ONE TOO MANY

KEARNY, N. J., July 19.—A lone Jersey "skeeter" which darted into the face of the driver was blamed yesterday for the overturning of a touring car carrying five persons at Dead Man's Curve Monday night. Louis Leont, driving with his wife and three children as passengers, felt a sudden sting on his face and swerved the car unconsciously. It overturned on a five-foot embankment. No one was seriously hurt.

SAYS FEDERAL MEN PUT ON PARTY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—Theodore Cier, owner of the Cier bonded warehouse in Oakland, yesterday told the United States district attorney that federal employes have been stealing wine from the warehouse and on one occasion held a party in the rum-cellar at which women were present. The federal intelligence bureau has ordered an investigation.

ASKS THAT RECEIVER BE APPOINTED

Andrew F. Rosch of this city has brought a bill in equity in the superior (civil) court at East Cambridge, claiming to be the owner of 38 shares of stock in the Lowell News Publishing Co., and setting forth that the corporation was dissolved by legislative act on March 31, 1922. He asks that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the estate and effects of the corporation. The order is returnable next Monday, July 24, but no date of hearing, has been fixed.

LIGHTNING STRUCK IN NO. BILLERICA

The home of Jeremiah Minihano in North Billerica was struck by lightning during yesterday afternoon's storm. The bolt struck one of the windows of the building and started a blaze, but the fire was put out by the firemen before any serious damage was done. A trolley pole near Sprague's bridge in the North village was hit and split through the centre, but it remained standing.

He was sent to jail for 30 days by Judge Hayes, who remarked that it would allow him time to cool off.

7 PERSONS DROWNED

Death Toll Heavy Yesterday in Waters of Eastern Massachusetts

BOSTON, July 19.—Seven persons were drowned in eastern Massachusetts waters yesterday. The list included four boys, two young men and a young woman.

The body of Miss Eunice Adallan of this city was found in the water at Vineyard Haven. It is believed she went in bathing and was drowned.

Frank Garruth, 22, attempted the rescue of John Cronin, 21, in Gilbertville, when the latter fell from a raft. Both lost their lives.

Francis Hooley, 15, of Cambridge, died at the Cambridge City hospital after he was pulled from the Charles river.

Clarence S. Thompson, 12, of Allston, was drowned in the Charles river near the Metropolitan Driving club in Brighton.

Roland Morin, 10, of Salem, was drowned while swimming in the swimming pool in Forest river park.

John Campbell, 15, of Lowell, was drowned in the municipal bathing pool.

Lux for washing dishes

Quick, rich, gentle suds—won't redden or roughen the hands

Three times a day in the dish pan—strong soap—any skin would redden or grow coarse.

But now your hands need not show tell-tale traces of dish washing. Lux won't redden or roughen them. It is just as easy on your skin as it is on your silks or woollens. The pure flakes bubble into a rich lather as gentle as a fine toilet soap.

Use Lux for china, silver and glassware. It leaves them sparklingly clean. And it rids your hands for good of that three-times-a-day-in-the-dish pan look.

One package of Lux will last for 44 dish washings—more than two weeks. Start using it today. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Just a tablespoon to a pan. A single package does 44 dish washings—all the dishes for more than two weeks.

BRIEF BUT IMPORTANT
WIRE DESPATCHES

BOSTON, July 18.—A bill in equity seeking to uphold the manual, prepared by Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy as the form of government of the First Church of Christ, Scientist (the mother church) and the activities of the church as founded by her, was filed in supreme court today.

NEWARK, N. J., July 18.—On application of the Consolidated Film Laboratory Co. of New York, Vice Chancellor Backes today, named Joseph L. Smith, a Newark lawyer, temporary receiver for the Consolidated Film Laboratory, Inc., of Patience. The concern is alleged to be insolvent, with assets of about $150,000 and liabilities of more than $200,000.

BOSTON, July 18.—Massachusetts has no dearth of citizens who are willing to serve the state by holding public office. Secretary of State Frederick W. Cook said today that he had distributed to candidates 50,000 nomination papers as compared with 30,000 two years ago. In addition to primary papers, about 1000 papers have been distributed to independent candidates, who will appear on the ballots election day but will not contest in the primaries.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The honorary mission which will attend the Brazilian centennial exposition will be named by President Harding this week and will be headed by Secretary Hughes. It was announced today at the White House. It was stated that Mr. Hughes undoubtedly would accompany the mission to Rio de Janeiro.

An "outstanding" major general, admiral and two others will make up with Mr. Hughes, the membership of the mission.

BOSTON, July 18.—Assistant United States Dist. Atty. Curtis today asked Federal Judge Mack that July 25 be set as the final date for a hearing on the motion to dismiss Joseph C. Society Eager To Know Social Program of New Mrs. George J. Gould

BY N.E.A. SERVICE

NEW YORK, July 18.—New York's rich are wondering about the social program of the bride of George J. Gould, the multimillionaire, whose kith and kin always have been at the apex of the "400."

Will the former Vera Sinclair return from abroad and attempt a social campaign next season?

The question intrigues, while other questions are still unanswered—the antecedents of the new Mrs. Gould, the romance that led to the marriage, the circumstances of the marriage ceremony itself.

And also: What is going to happen to the two city homes—one in Fifth Avenue—which Mr. Gould inherited by the will of Mrs. Edith Kingdon Gould, his first wife?

Provision nine of the will bequeaths him these residences "until he remarries." In which event they are to be sold and the proceeds added to the residuary estate.

Gould and his bride are now reported to have been married in Lakewood, N. J., before leaving for abroad, though no announcement was made until after they had spent some time in London and Paris and were on the way to Aix-les-Bains.

Meanwhile Jay Gould, a son, has gone to Europe and will probably visit his father and stepmother during their honeymoon.

Mr. Gould's daughter, Edith—Mrs. Carroll L. Waterright, whose romance led to a runaway match—is planning to go to Europe.

Other children are Kingdon, George, Jr., Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, Lady Deedes and Gloria Gould.

The bride of Gould is a blonde, about 30. She is said to have been born in Ohio, of English parentage. The name of Vera Sinclair appeared in the cast of "The Girl in the Film," a musical farce produced Dec. 30, 1918, in New York by George Grossmith, London comedian, who brought the company from England.

Recently Mrs. Gould, who has two children, a boy about seven and a girl of four, has been living on a large estate on Manorsing Island, off Rye, N. Y.

HERBS USED IN MEDICINES

A Manchester, England, paper urges the renewed cultivation of old-fashioned medicinal herbs in English gardens. In the United States they have also gone out of fashion as a feature of the small garden, although they are imported in large quantities from Turkey, India and China, where they are grown purely for commercial purposes, as their medicinal value is recognized by many leading physicians. Tons of medicinal herbs are used annually in the preparation of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most successful medicine for women's ills. It contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and women afflicted with such ailments should try it.—Adv.

Legal Notices

Commonwealth of Massachusetts—Middlesex ss. Probate Court.
To the heirs and next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Thomas P. Maguire, late of Lowell, in said County, deceased.
Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by Thomas N. Maguire, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named, without giving a surety on his official bond.
You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge in said County of Middlesex, on the twenty-fifth day of July, A. D. 1922, at one o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.
And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in "The Lowell Sun," a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least, before said Court.
Witness, George P. Lawton, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of July, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two.
JULY 19-24 F. M. ESTY, Register.

NOTICE

Bids will be received at the Water Works Office, City Hall, until July 27, at 2 P. M. and will be opened by the Public Service Board as soon thereafter as convenient, for furnishing the materials and doing the work of installing seven electric lights with connection to switch board at Centralville Pumping Station.
Those intending to bid can see the premises and learn the requirements of the Superintendent's office, Hampden street (rear of Pumping Station). The Public Service Board of the City of Lowell reserves the right to reject any or all bids as it may deem for the best interests of the city.
ROBERT GARDNER, Superintendent.

Adventures of the Twins
MINK SWALLOWS FISH BONE, CALLS FOR DR. SNUFFLES

"Ting-a-ling-a-ling!" went Dr. Snuffles' telephone in his little house by the hotel bush.
"Nick, answer that, please," called Dr. Snuffles. "I'm busy taking a splinter out of Scramble Squirrel's foot."
"Hello, is that Dr. Snuffles' office?" said a voice excitedly.
"Yes," answered Nick.
"Well, tell him please to hurry over to Rimple Creek. Marty Mink's got a fish-bone in his throat, and he's carrying on something awful."
"All right," said Nick, hanging up. Just then Scramble Squirrel came limping out of the office, his foot all nicely bandaged, and he heard what had happened.
"Marty Mink!" he exclaimed. "A fish-bone in his throat? Goodness alive, he is that very dangerous, doctor!"
"Oh, not very," answered Dr. Snuffles. "Why, are you thinking of starting on a fish diet, Scramble, instead of nuts?"
"No," said Scramble. "I was just wondering what would happen if you couldn't get the fish-bone out of Marty Mink's throat."
Dr. Snuffles called to Nancy to bring him his hat and medicine case before he answered.
"Well," said he, "it's this way—one is likely to lose his appetite as long as the fish-bone sticks."
"Can't he eat anything at all?" exclaimed Scramble.
"No," said the fairy doctor. "not a thing."
"Couldn't he eat frogs or field-mice or moles or blackbirds or chipmunks or rabbits—or anything. Not even squirrels?" asked Scramble.
"No, nothing!"
Suddenly Scramble departed without as much as a goodbye and running as fast as he could tear. He'd completely forgotten all about his sore foot.
"Well, I declare," exclaimed the doctor. "What do you suppose he's up to? He even forgot to pay me my 50 cents."

Grand Jury Called to Investigate
WELLSBURG, W. Va., July 19.—Circuit Judge Sommerville, of Wheeling, has called a grand jury for Aug. 14 to investigate the battle at Clifton mine last Monday in which four persons were killed. Forty-eight persons are in custody. The miners' tent colony at Cliftonville has been dismantled.

To Assume Liability for Payment
WASHINGTON, July 19.—The Boston & Maine railroad today received interstate commerce commission authority to assume liability for payment of principal and interest of $1,815,000 in equipment trust certificates. The securities will be sold to finance purchases of new locomotives and cars for the railroad.

LISTED AS DEAD HE WORKS EVERY DAY

WORCESTER, July 19.—Louis A. Gilbert served during the war as a private, first class, in the 2nd Company, 3rd Battalion, 151 Depot Brigade, at Camp Devens, from July 15, 1915, until April 5, 1919, when he was discharged, suffering from a physical disability. For a time after his discharge he received government compensation for disability, but this suddenly stopped and he applied to the Worcester chapter of the Red Cross.
An inquiry by the chapter officers revealed the fact that Gilbert had become listed as dead, so his compensation was stopped. The Red Cross started to have him restored to the government to the official land of the living.

LIMERICK SCENE OF HEAVY FIGHTING

DUBLIN, July 19.—(By the Associated Press)—News reaching Dublin this morning confirms the earlier reports that heavy fighting occurred in Limerick, over the week-end, the national army troops succeeding in isolating the irregulars in the Strand barracks in King John Castle. Captains of the insurgents is believed to be imminent.
Recent speculation on the supposed impending large scale operations against the republican insurgents in southwest Ireland seems to have moved the Free State government to check popular anticipation of an early march to triumph and peace.
The provisional government's newspaper, Truth, publishes an article emphasizing the difficulties to be met and warning the public not to expect immediate achievement of the task.

WAVES HANDKERCHIEF AND HALTS TRAIN

SAUGUS, July 19.—Howard C. Chapman waving a handkerchief in the path of a Boston & Maine train last night, attracted the attention of the engineer in time to prevent the locomotive from crashing into an automobile containing Miss Belle M. Holloway of Lynn, which had stalled on a crossing.
Miss Holloway who was driving the machine, became confused when, emerging from behind a truck as she drove onto the crossing, she saw the approaching train. Mrs. P. E. Hodgkins of Lewiston, Me., who was with her, tugged from her seat, and Chapman, seeing the predicament of the women, sprinted down the tracks and was able to stop the train.

FREIGHT YARD WILL COST MILLIONS

PROVIDENCE, July 19.—Purchase of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad of 17 parcels of land, with a total area of close to 50,000 feet, in connection with the development of the road's Great Northrup-ave. freight yard, was revealed yesterday by the filing of deeds covering the transactions at city hall.
There was also filed with the recorder a deed from the Old Colony railroad company to the Boston & Providence Railroad Corporation, conveying to the latter seven parcels of land along the main line of the Boston & Providence road between the Union station and Boston switch, so-called. The new freight yard is to cost several million dollars.

CONTRACT PAVING WORK

Board of Public Service
Instructs City Engineer to
Call for Bids

Asphalt paving will be laid on certain Lowell streets this summer by contract, according to action taken late yesterday afternoon by the board of public service, when it instructed the city engineer to call for bids for the furnishing of material and labor, bids to be opened early next week.

At a meeting of the board on Monday Chester B. Williams, representing the Framingham Construction Co., submitted a proposal covering Topoka and sheet asphalt, the city to prepare the foundation and grade and the company to lay the paving. Chairman Dennis J. Murphy did not wish to decide upon the proposal until the city solicitor had been taken into conference relative to whether it would be legal to award a contract for the paving. The board, based upon bids received from this concern early in the spring, but which were rejected along with others.

Solicitor Tierney's verbal opinion is that it would be unwise to follow such a course and, therefore, new bids will be asked for and a contract awarded at the meeting of the board on the 27th.

The board yesterday approved a bill of $12,833.35, submitted by the Framingham Construction Co. of Boston for extra work on Central bridge up to and including Feb. 1, 1922. Although the bill now stands approved, the real job the company has on its hands is to collect the money from the city. At present the appropriation for bridge construction does not amount to much more than $6000, and the city auditor cannot issue a warrant until the fund is rehabilitated in some way.

The bridge matter again was discussed at length with John M. O'Donoghue, counsel for the Engineering Service Co., but no definite decision was reached on the point of who is responsible for the present condition of the structure.

It was agreed, however, that Mr. O'Donoghue shall address a letter to the board, asking that the company be allowed to do the work which remains and later it will be decided whether that concern or some other will do the job.

SHOWERS BRING RELIEF

Heavy Electrical Storms
Played Over City Last
Night and Early Today

Yesterday's intense heat was broken with a vengeance shortly after 5 o'clock in the afternoon when the first of a continuous series of electrical storms played over the city. With the first storm came a regulation downpour that marooned hundreds of home-goers and placed a tax upon the street railway cars that all but swamped them.

On the evening and well into the night the rain fell and was accompanied by blinding shafts of vivid lightning and heavy showers were recurrent every hour or so. At 4 o'clock this morning it poured, but gradually diminished as dawn came on and it was fairly clear at daylight.

The city looked thoroughly drenched this morning and miniature lakes stood in many streets. In Westford street, where the roadway has been excavated to make room for the new paving, there was an unbroken pond from Dover to Wilder streets. The water level did not quite reach the top of the catch basins and as a result had no outlet.

Not one of the storms reached the intensity of the ones of last Thursday when lightning struck in several places, but several seemed directly overhead and were heavy enough to satisfy the most exacting inhabitant.

During the storm a bolt of lightning struck the home of Mr. H. H. Brown on the Boulevard in Westford. The bolt struck the side of the house, tearing off the claspboard and passed through the sitting room floor, along the wall and out through the window, where it destroyed part of a fence.

Mrs. H. H. Brown, who was alone in the house at the time, was just leaving the room when the lightning struck and had a very narrow escape. She received a slight shock but soon recovered.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS FAIL

Kerosene Lamps Light Way
for Merry Dancers at Canobie Lake

Inky blackness outside, intermittent flashes of blue, the streaming yellow light of kerosene lamps, and the shadowy blinding of vari-colored dresses was the stage setting for the evening program of the Lowell Electric Light Corp. ending last night at Canobie Lake.

Despite the elements, the young folks would not be denied their enjoyment, and the motto of the night was "on with the dance, and let joy be unconfined."

Early in the evening the severe and intense electrical storms sent the lights in the dance hall to the commission but, with the adaptability of youth for every occasion, kerosene lamps were brought into use and the dance continued.

Later, every light in the park went out and the faint surroundings faded from view. Flashlights were ordered for the stygian darkness and the scene resembled a convocation of the fluffies gentry. Through shadows and light, light and shadows, cast by the candles, the lamps placed here and there, the children were seen in the midst of the dance and the spectacle was one of fantastic beauty.

When the hour of departure came the young people picked their way through the maze of trees with the help of the candles and blue flames of the lightning. Finally it was necessary to drive one of the machines down into the park and play the headlights on the paths leading from the dance hall to the parking space. In spite of all these inconveniences, all enjoyed themselves and experienced a novel and entertaining situation.

B. & M. CAR SHOP STRIKE

Report That Employees Are
Armed to Be Investigated
By Captain Petrie

As a result of a report to strikers of the Boston & Maine car shops and roundhouse on the part of a young man who was employed as a strike-breaker at the roundhouse, to the effect that some of the employees of that plant were carrying firearms and other dangerous weapons, Capt. Petrie, head of the local criminal bureau, has been notified and it is understood that he is to conduct an investigation.

The young fellow called at strike headquarters yesterday afternoon and informed members of the press committee that he had been employed as a strike-breaker at the roundhouse for some time, but fearing that bodily harm would be done him by some of the employees of the plant, who carried firearms and long knives, he threw up his job. He also stated that four or five other young men employed at the roundhouse were also badly scared and were going to get through unless the men were prevented from carrying weapons.

A committee of strikers called on Supt. Jennings at the car shops yesterday afternoon in an endeavor to make arrangements for the payment of the strikers, who were unable to meet the paymaster at the Thorndike street freight house on last pay day. The superintendent assured the committee that he would get in touch with headquarters in Boston at once and would notify them as soon as a date had been set for the payment of back wages.

It is understood that five strike-breakers at the roundhouse, who were disatisfied with conditions, left their work this morning. Lowell police were on duty at the Lawrence roundhouse yesterday and it is said they succeeded in inducing some of the strike breakers to leave their work.

The working hours at the Billerica shops have been changed from 7 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. to from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. and the employees' train now leaves the Middlesex street station at 5 o'clock every morning. This train, which formerly consisted of 11 coaches, is now made up of five coaches only.

A committee of strikers called on Supt. Jennings at the car shops yesterday afternoon in an endeavor to make arrangements for the payment of the strikers, who were unable to meet the paymaster at the Thorndike street freight house on last pay day. The superintendent assured the committee that he would get in touch with headquarters in Boston at once and would notify them as soon as a date had been set for the payment of back wages.

THE TAX RATE FOR 1922

Tax Announcement Coming
in August—Hold 'er Newt, She's Arealin'

The 1922 tax rate will be announced the middle of August and at the present time there is absolutely no way by which an approximate of its amount may be figured. With the present rate of $1.40 as a basis, it may be 50 cents or $1 more or 50 cents or $1 less. It is a guess at best.

The assessing force will not begin to write the tax books until next Monday, but will do overtime work in an effort to finish them by the middle of next month.

Daniel E. Hogan, chairman of the board, is on a vacation, but John Dwyer and Wilfred J. Achin, the two other members, said today that they have had no conference with Mayor Brown on the probable tax rate figure.

The mayor announced a day or so ago that the rate for this year would be 50 cents less than at present, but he had come to this conclusion after a conference with the assessors. The two assessors now on the job know of no such conference and said today that they have no means of telling what the rate will be.

STATE AID CONTROVERSY

Trades and Labor and Textile
Councils to File Protests
With Council

Mayor George H. Brown stated today that he will take no action regarding a successor to William A. Arnold, superintendent of state aid, until after tomorrow night's meeting of the city council, at which time representatives of the Trades and Labor council and the Lowell Textile council will file formal protest against the alleged acts of Supt. Arnold in referring service men, who had applied at his office for aid, to the Merrimack Mills Co. and the Boston & Maine car shops, at both of which places labor troubles were in progress.

The mayor would not say whether he would eventually send the name of Mrs. Sarah H. Kittredge to the council as a nominee to succeed Mr. Arnold, although he admitted that he had it under consideration.

"I prefer to wait and see whether the council takes any definite stand on the matter tomorrow night," he said.

Mrs. Kittredge's name was sent to the council for the position of assistant superintendent of state aid, but got no further when the civil service commission classified Mrs. Mary F. McCann, the present incumbent, as under civil service laws and regulations. At that time there was considerable talk concerning the possibility of the mayor nominating Mrs. Kittredge for the superintendency and this discussion has come to a head recently, due, it is believed, to controversy between Supt. Arnold and Stephen C. Garvity, legion commander, over the former's alleged action of recommending to service men who sought aid at his office, that work could be secured either at the Merrimack mills or at the railroad car shops in North Billerica.

THE LARGEST CITY PAYROLL

The largest city payroll of the year was in the hands of the city auditor today, awaiting the approval of the budget and audit commission. The amount of the roll, $43,240.76, is more than $3000 higher than last week's.

Last week's payroll totaled $33,514.58, and the week previous, it amounted to $42,709.29.

The water works payroll is bigger by $5000 this week, while streets has shot up approximately $7000. Police is $3000 less.

The name of Sutton Wilson, former superintendent, does not appear on the payroll of the division of ashes and waste collection.

Hanley Calls Mass. Mills Wage Reduction Methods Unfair and Un-American

The method employed by the officials of the Massachusetts mills in reducing the wages of their operatives was this morning branded as unfair and un-American by John Hanley, chairman of the strike committee. He contended that the operatives are selling their labor to the manufacturers and that in fairness to them they should at least know the wages they are working for.

"There were no notices posted and the operatives were given an oral notice of a wage reduction," declared Mr. Hanley, "but the amount was not specified. I am informed that in some departments the operatives were told the reduction would be the same as that in effect in similar departments of the Merrimack Mfg. Co., but that is not specifying anything, for there was never an official statement relative to the amount of the reduction given out by officials of the Merrimack. In other departments the employees were simply told that a reduction in wages would go into effect. Such action is not giving the operative a chance to sell his labor for what he thinks it is worth. What would happen if Agent Mitchell went into a clothing store, ordered a suit made to his home and then after the goods were delivered, he went back to the store and offered to pay not the market price, but what he thought the suit was worth? I believe that the same rule that applies to agent Mitchell when he buys clothing or other necessities of life, should be in force when he purchases the labor of his mill operatives.

"It is the agent's or other mill official's privilege to reduce wages when they see fit, but they should state the amount of the cut and give their employees ample time to think the matter over. In the case of the Massachusetts operatives were notified orally and were only given a day and a

STILL FIGHTING FIRE IN WAREHOUSE

NEW YORK, July 19.—With tons of water from lines of hose continuing to pour into the seven story warehouse still afire in Greenwich village today, three separate inquiries were under way to determine the responsibility for the fire that caused the death of two firemen, injured 30 others and caused property damage of more than $1,000,000.

More than 300 persons were made homeless by the flames and were housed for the night in schoolhouses and Salvation Army barracks on cots provided by the Red Cross. "There are scoundrels who play money and profit above human life," said Mayor Hylan to newspapermen. "It's about time some of them spent some of their time in jail. We have many honored citizens who care too much for the almighty dollar."

Mammoth Stills and Other Paraphernalia Found in Campaw Street House

All records of moonshine seizures in Lowell and vicinity and most of those in the entire state were broken today when, after many night and early morning vigils by Sergeant Michael H. Wynn and Officer Alfred J. Cooney of the liquor squad at the premises numbered 49 and 51 Campaw street, the two liquor officers, under the leadership of Captain George Palmer descended upon the house at 10:25 this morning armed with a search warrant, and found a distillery of extraordinary capacity in full operation.

The house is a two-family dwelling of two and one-half stories. The partitions have been removed recently and the house converted into a mammoth moonshine plant. On the first floor of the house is a mess of canteen furniture and two stills of 50-gal capacity each, evidently the ones used in the beginning of activities and dismantled and cast aside as business improved.

The second floor was the real plant. In the rear room of the section numbered 49, two 100-gallon stills were in full operation, with the mash boilers on gas stoves and the coils running through tanks of cold water at the rear, the distilled product dropping to a large receptacle on the floor. In the room opposite, separated by a bathroom, was a still with a capacity of 150-gallons, also in operation when the officers arrived. While the other two were of the common washboiler variety, although specially constructed, this was a large cylindrical still of the latest type.

About 75 gallons of moonshine fell into the hands of the law along with the stills and other paraphernalia. It was evidently, from its odor, made of good barley mash, and the odor of the condensed 'shine dripping from the stills and coils in operation filled the premises with an old time cast.

Along with the moonshine, a great quantity of other materials were seized, in a closet in the front room of number 51, 60 new tin cans of gallon size were confiscated. Charcoal and stoves for its consumption, filtering paper, a heterogeneous collection of glass jugs and bottles and other necessary items were found in the same room, in the cellar were 23 empty barrels, giving off the odor of mash, and in the attic were 16 barrels filled to the brim with barley mash of a good quality, according to the officers.

The officers first noticed automobile parties and occasional pedestrians visiting the premises and became suspicious. This morning they fell upon the place, but found the owner unaccountably absent. His arrest is expected to follow in a short time.

CHILDREN'S OUTING AT TYNGSBORO GREAT SUCCESS

ONE OF THE SISTERS, GOV. COX, PRES. HUTCHINS PARKER AND GROUP OF "KIDS"

One of the most memorable and successful events in the long list of local Rotarian activities was brought to a happy conclusion about 5 o'clock last evening, when the 436 children, representing the French-American orphanage, St. Peter's orphanage, the Ayer and O'Leary homes and the Day Nursery, together with almost 200 guests, left the scene of the annual picnic yesterday at the Martin Luther grounds in Tynsboro.

It was a never-to-be-forgotten day, especially for the little tots who enjoyed every moment in the great outdoors, from the time they left the Ayer home in the 18 automobiles and trucks, until they were again conveyed to their respective homes, tired, some of them a little wet, but contented for being so.

The big day started with a parade through the downtown streets, covering Merrimack, Central, Appleton, Westford and Pine to the Princeton boulevard and thence through North

Chelmsford to the grounds. The parade consisted of five divisions arranged in the order named: French-American orphanage, St. Peter's orphanage, Ayer home, O'Leary home and the Day Nursery. Each machine was numbered and bore a triangular-shaped placard with the inscription, "Children's Outing—Lowell Rotary Club—1922." Every child wore a tag on which was inscribed the name of the home from which he or she came.

NO BROKEN OR STOVE COAL

City Unable to Get a Bid to Supply City Hall With 125 Tons of Former

None Available in City Dealers Say—Purchasing Agent Will Wait

The city of Lowell could not obtain a single bid today on a requisition to supply 125 tons of broken coal for consumption at the city hall building. Four local dealers submitted bids on soft coal for the water works department, but not one of them attempted to quote a price on broken coal, each saying that there is no broken or stove coal in the city in any appreciable amount.

City Purchasing Agent Poye said that he will be obliged to hold over the requisition until such a time as some of the coal desired is obtainable. When this will be is a matter of pure conjecture.

FIRST ST. BOULEVARD

Contract Awarded for $104,000 and Actual Work Will Begin Next Week

Powers Bros., road construction engineers, with a bid of approximately $104,000, have been awarded the contract to build the new boulevard in First street, beginning at the junction of First and Reed streets and continuing to the Dracut line. Bids were opened yesterday by officials of the state highway department at the state house.

Of the amount of the contract, the state's share will be about $35,000, with the county paying $15,000, thus leaving the city's obligation at approximately $54,000.

City Engineer Kearney said today that he expects the actual work will begin some time next week and that it will be pushed rapidly so that the new road will be completed by late fall.

TAFT RETURNS FROM ABROAD

QUEBEC, July 19.—Chief Justice and Mrs. William Howard Taft, home from their visit to England, were resting today at their summer home near Murray bay, Que.

The former president, who landed here yesterday, said he believed the "corner had been turned" in British trade conditions. He soon will begin preparation of a report on his study of the British law code, which was the chief purpose of his visit. The report will be submitted to the government for guidance in revision of the American legal system.

HIGH SCHOOL CAMPAIGN

Drive Launched Today to Raise $32,000 for New Athletic Field

The campaign, by which it is hoped the Lowell high school will have an athletic plant on Spaulding park land commensurate with the excellence of the new school building to be opened in the fall, was launched today by committees made up of school alumni, with Bennett Silverblatt as general chairman.

The goal of the campaign is $32,000, which is an amount necessary to acquire the area needed and erect thereon an athletic home, adequate for baseball, football, tennis, hockey track and other activities which are a part of the school's physical training curriculum.

For the purposes of the drive, headquarters have been established in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce in the Fairburn building. Two telephones have been installed, numbers 210 and 1230, and young women will be on duty daily to handle the clerical work incident to the drive.

The campaign has been under discussion for several weeks, the idea having originated within the school alumni association, which felt that the success of future athletics in the school depended entirely upon its equipment.

A temporary committee was appointed for the purpose of studying and selecting a site and Spaulding park was agreed upon. The committee has an option on this land and other areas adjacent to it, the whole being of

LOWELL DISTRICT COURT

Motor Vehicle and Liquor Law Violations Heard—Other Cases

Several cases of violation of the motor vehicle laws, along with a complaint of illegal keeping and two larceny charges, one against a man now employed at the B. & M. car shops, featured this morning's session of district court. It was reported that Judge Enright was to preside at the session, but Associate Justice Fisher appeared at the appointed time.

The first case was that of John Rupek, who was charged by overcases of the Massachusetts mills with stealing 4 1/2 yards of cloth, valued at 72 cents, yesterday. One overcase told sufficient area for the establishment of a modern athletic field.

To make the campaign as far-reaching and as effective as possible committees of five have been appointed representing all classes that have been graduated from the school. Classes of years long gone by have not a full committee, but each has a representative. It is the idea of the general committee that these class committees confine their soliciting efforts to members of their respective classes and this way a thorough canvass of the alumni will be possible.

Three local banks have gladly consented to become depositories for funds collected with Edward W. Trull as treasurer.

On the last page of this paper may be found a subscription blank which may be filled in and sent either to Mr. Trull, or to campaign headquarters in the chamber of commerce rooms.

Beautiful Memorial to Memory of Bay State Clergymen Unveiled Today

WAR CHAPLAINS' MEMORIAL TABLET AT STATE HOUSE

(Special to The Sun)
BOSTON, July 19.—The beautiful tablet commemorating the service of four Massachusetts chaplains, who died in the World war, was dedicated at the state house this noon, Rep. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware being the orator of the day. Many notables attended including Cardinal O'Connell, Bishop William Lawrence, Gen. Edwards and W. C. Hayes of Springfield, and state and city officials.

The memorial tablet will be placed on the wall of the third floor, between the southern entrance to the chamber of the house of representatives and the speaker's room. The tablet, which is by Miss Dasha Paet of Boston, portrays two chaplains ministering to a wounded soldier—one of the figures being that of Father John H. De Valles, Catholic priest of New Bedford; and the other the Rev. Walton Danker, Protestant clergyman of Worcester, both of whom were chaplains

MILLMEN REFUSE TO FACE ISSUES

Labor Commissioner Davis Says New Hampshire Men Stick to Declarations

Will Not Submit Issues to State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation

CONCORD, N. H., July 19.—Labor Commissioner John B. Davies, in a formal statement today asserted that textile manufacturers in New Hampshire had refused to submit to the state board of conciliation and arbitration the issues in the present strike, insisting that a 20 per cent wage reduction and an increase in working hours from 48 to 54 a week are necessary for the successful operation of their mills. This position, the operatives combat. Sworn statements to this effect were submitted by manufacturers' agents in Dover, Exeter, Nashua and Somersworth, but requests for such statements, made to managers of mills in Newmarket, Suncook and Manchester, elicited no replies.

Leaders of the striking operatives refused to submit to arbitration the question of hours of labor and failed to indicate their reason for such refusal. Failure to accept his recommendation, it was said, practically eliminates the labor commissioner from the controversy, but he recommends that the strike be declared off, that the employees be reinstated without prejudice and that local boards of arbitration be named, with agreement in advance to accept the decisions of these boards. The strike has already cost the workers and the communities affected many millions of dollars.

LOWELL SHOWS BIG GAIN IN BUILDING

BOSTON, July 19.—According to returns received from the building department of 33 Massachusetts cities, who have reported to the department of labor and industries the aggregate value represented by applications filed for permits to build during the month of June, 1922, was $18,233,315, showing a decrease of $1,711,013 or 11.4 per cent, compared with the aggregate $14,544,328 for May, 1922.

The building permits filed in Lowell show an aggregate of $18,934 for June of this year and $21,558 for May of this year, thus making Lowell one of the few places showing a substantial gain in building.

He also asked that these governors give mine operators sufficient protection. The text of the proclamation may be found on page four.

PROWLERS SEEN AT DAM BEFORE FLOOD

CHICOPPE, July 15.—Further steps to relieve the distress of 33 families whose homes and property were destroyed in the flood that struck this town Monday were made last night, when the Williamson committee was merged with the general relief committee of the Holyoke chamber of commerce. An office will be opened in Williamson, where stricken families may apply for aid.

Investigation into the breaking of the Langwald dam was made for the state yesterday by State Detective David J. Manning. He will make his report within a day or two.

Alfred Langwald, owner of the pond and dam which bears his name, said that the watchman at the pond reported that four men were seen prowling around the dam one night last week carrying flashlights.

There is some disposition to connect this incident with the bursting of the dam and Mr. Langwald declared his intention of probing this point thoroughly. The state detective denied that he investigated this phase of the question.

Unofficially, engineers who have viewed the ruins of the cement dam at Langwald pond state that faulty construction appears to be the cause of the disaster.

Marked aridities were made yesterday by the city department in putting the streets in condition for traffic.

The Holyoke Ice company of Holyoke has filed an attachment against the Langwald company to recover $50,000 for flood damage.

Action was brought by the C. P. Church Manufacturing company for damage to its plant against the Langwald company and also against the Holyoke Ice company, while Rosetta C. Griffin filed attachments against the Langwald company, the Holyoke Ice company and George Roberts, said to be former owner of Roberts pond.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
Final performances will be given this evening at the Merrimack Square theatre of the Crispin Chalkley, starring Dorothy Dalton in one of the most entertaining productions of her career, "The Man Unconquerable," starring Jack Holt, is the second big feature.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday the feature will be "Two Minutes to Go," starring popular Charles Ray in a lively story of the football field and college life, and "The Sleep Walker," one of Constantine Blinn's best dramatic photoplays.

Charles Ray gives an admirable portrayal of a football hero in "Two Minutes to Go." The drama and virility which have characterized Ray in past screen successes were never better exemplified than in his interpretation of the role of the college lad, who, through financial reverses, is compelled to quit the team and give his spare time to peddling milk as a means of working his way through school.

Because he is ashamed of the job and offers an explanation of his leaving the team of which he has been the star player, Chet, portrayed by Ray, gains only the contempt of his classmates and his sweetheart.

The great day comes, however, when Chet saves his team from defeat and transforms a combination of misfortunes into happiness.

Ray is given excellent support by Mary Anderson, his leading lady, who makes a very charming little co-ed. Lionel Barrymore, Lincoln Stedman, Freeman Vard Dyke, Gus Leonard, Tom Wilson and the other players also contribute toward the success of this wholesome production.

Richard André is the author of "Two Minutes to Go," and it is to be hoped that he will favor the screen—and Charles Ray—with more material of this kind.

An unusually well-rounded entertainment is "The Sleep Walker," the second feature for the evening. The story is an absorbing one, concerning a convent-bred girl who is suddenly plunged into intrigue and tense situations. Miss Blinn's story is well supported. A Johnny Hines comedy and the International News complete the bill.

THE STRAND

"The Delicious Little Devil," with Max Murray, assisted by Rudolph Valentino, is the new feature at the Strand. If you haven't seen this picture you should avail yourself of the last opportunity to do so. It is one of the most commendable picture offerings of the season.

Then there is Betty Compson in "Always the Woman," another high-grade screen creation, as well as a good Weekly issue and other features.

For the last three days of the week, starting with Monday Thursday, Alice Lake in "The Golden Gift," will be one of the stellar attractions. It's a drama of the call of three voices, a great story of a child's and the still, small, penetrating voice of conscience. John Hoppers and others of note are included in the supporting cast. Earle Williams in a new kind of story, "Jackie Corbett," is to be the other contribution and this will be sufficient to make the program one of unusual excellence. Williams is again seen as a regular, big-hearted, whose vigor and vim will appeal to all.

Wedded by Radio When Minister Fails to Get Home in Time—Just as Happy, Says Dallas Couple

At one point of the city in the bride. At another is the bridegroom. And at a third is the minister. And they're all set for the marriage ceremony.

This situation actually existed recently in Dallas, Texas.

The wedding took place by radio. Miss Mable Brady was the bride and John H. Stone the bridegroom. Rev. Thomas H. Harper, at a radio station some distance off, performed the ceremony. Each said "I do" from different stations. Then came the kiss, also by radio, and the ceremony was over. But that radio kiss was not far ahead of the actual kiss of the wedded couple, when they met. The picture shows Miss Brady and Stone at their stations while Rev. Harper, above, "kissed the knot."

Two Tubes Seem to Greatly Simplify Super-Regenerative Set

BY PAUL F. GODLEY

America's Foremost Radio Authority. This is the fourth of a series of articles on the Armstrong super-regenerative receiver. The circuit diagram of the super-regenerative method of reception shown in the first article of this series called for the performance of

As a matter of fact two tubes may be used—with the circuits of the second and third articles associated.

To those not skilled in handling vacuum tube circuits this arrangement will prove simpler.

Conductive Coupling. It will be noted that Figures 1 and 2 differ only in the method of association or "coupling." Inductive coupling between the two circuits can normally give sufficiently clean coupling. Conductive coupling is, therefore, resorted to.

Thus the pick-up coil is actually made a part of the controller circuit. A common battery supply is also used to simplify the set-up.

The controller circuit is adjusted to generate oscillations of approximately 10,000 a second. This produces a wave length of about 30,000 meters.

Interval of four seconds, and the time signals are ended with the call letters, "N A A," those of the Arlington station.

SAUGUS, July 19.—Edward Cushing, 18-month-old baby boy who was boarded at the home of Mrs. Emma Redding, 114 Broadway, Saugus, was permanently removed yesterday from the home by Supt. James E. Fox of the children's division of the state board of charity, department of public welfare.

Removal of the child was the result of an investigation made by the state after it had received complaint from a neighbor of the Reddings regarding the alleged cruel and abusive treatment given the baby. The complaint stated that Mrs. Redding was neglecting the infant boy, and was keeping him caged up in a small net box for hours at a stretch.

Miss Jennie Purchase, agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, was notified and after her investigation, coupled with that of the Saugus police and the state authorities, the child was removed to other quarters.

Supt. Fox emphatically stated yesterday that Mrs. Redding was not guilty of abusive treatment to the Cushing child and that the reason the child was being removed from her care was because of the adverse criticism which was unjustly made by jealous neighbors. He said that Mrs. Redding should be exonerated of all charges made against her regarding the care of the state ward, and emphasized the wrong done to the Reddings concerning the net cage, which was not made for a cruel torture to the child, but for a real comfort, to keep the mosquitoes away.

EX-MAYOR BLAKE OF BANGOR DIES

BANGOR, Me., July 19.—Hon. Edward Howard Blake, former mayor, bank president, lawyer and reputed to be the wealthiest man in Maine, died yesterday after a long decline. Funeral services will be held Thursday. He was born in Bangor, July 3, 1856; the son of William A. Blake, a prominent business man and active in civic matters, attended the Bangor schools and in 1873 entered Bowdoin college. He left in his junior year and went to Europe, where he lived in the Latin quarter of Paris for some time, studying art and the French and German languages.

Returning to Bangor he took up the study of law in the office of his uncle, D. H. Blake, and then entered Albany Law school, from which he graduated in 1878. He specialized in admiralty law. He practiced for a time in Bangor but abandoned this activity to attend to numerous business interests.

President Harding's Message to Governors Important

The proposal of the federal government to the United Mine Workers and the various coal operators, whose mines are under suspension, to submit all questions in dispute to a national coal commission for arbitration, has been declined.

The Mine Workers declined as a body. The majority of the bituminous operators pledged unqualified acceptance. The anthracite operators filed unconditional acceptance.

A minority of the bituminous operators accepted the principle of arbitration, but made specifications which could not be considered. I had proposed that the operators and mine workers in dispute should immediately resume coal production under the wage scales and working conditions which prevailed at the time of the strike on last April 1; that every question in dispute should go to a national commission to be composed of three representatives of the mine workers, three representatives of the operators and five representatives of the American people.

It was proposed to make the commission the final authority on all disputes until next March, and meanwhile the commission was to inaugurate a searching inquiry into every phase of the coal industry, in order to recommend the way to maintain understandings between workers and employers, to promote steady employment and assure a continuous and ample fuel supply.

The failure to secure the acceptance of this proposal for a voluntary adjustment left no other course but to invite the mine operators to return to their mines and resume activities.

I trust you will find it consistent to second this invitation, if you have not already done so, with the invitation to all miners and operators to resume their work. This invitation should be accompanied by such assurance of maintained order and the protection of lawful endeavor as will give assurance to everybody concerned. I want to convey to you in this message the assurance of the prompt and full support of the federal government whenever and wherever you find your own agencies of law and order inadequate to meet the situation.

Your state government and the federal government are jointly responsible for maintained conditions under which free men, willing to work, may work in safety. We are responsible for the production and the transportation of a fuel supply ample for the necessities of the American people and the public utilities which serve them, particularly the railways engaged in interstate commerce. We must have ample coal to maintain industrial activity; we must have the coal necessary to the health, security and the activity of all the people. I repeat to you these details because it is important to have it understood how far the federal government has gone in seeking a voluntary adjustment. Thus far, there has been no challenge of the right of workers to decline employment, or the right of the employers to hire as they elect.

Our present duty is to guarantee security in the exercise of these rights, security in all lawful operations, and afford a safe opportunity for that production and distribution demanded by the necessities of the American people.

There has been no government assumption of a part in the dispute between organized workers and organized employers. I did offer the only available agency which I know to effect a settlement, and these good offices have not availed.

It becomes necessary, therefore, in the name of common welfare, to invite protection in the fulfillment of that obligation which attaches to an American industry engaged in providing any public necessity and to afford security to all men alike who are ready and willing to serve the common need.

No clause is so important as that of common welfare, and there must be the suppression of every unlawful hindrance to the service of that cause. To the task of lawful protection and the maintenance of order, the federal government pledges to you every assistance at its command.

WARREN HARDING.

connected with the 104th Infantry regiment of the 26th Division. The tablet also commemorates the death of two other Massachusetts chaplains, the Rev. William F. Devitt of Holyoke and the Rev. Simon A. O'Rourke of Fall River, and the inscription on the tablet reads as follows:

"These brave and men fell broken and bleeding, they calmly ministered, heroic witnesses to the power of the faith they preached."

The tablet was provided by act of the legislature as a result of a petition by the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, member of the house from Ware, who urged the historic importance of commemorating not only the military services of the men, but the spirit of fraternity in which both Catholic and Protestant clergymen performed their duties side by side in the war.

July 19 was selected as the date for unveiling the tablet, because it is the fourth anniversary of the day on which the 104th regiment, to which two of the chaplains belonged, went into the front action for the first time.

Senator Raymond H. Trevelyan of Marblehead, chairman of the special commission which selected the form of the memorial, and a member of the Yankee division, presided at the ceremonies at the state house today. Rev. O'Rourke, chaplain of the 104th Infantry and a member of the special memorial commission offered the prayers. The Rev. Mr. Sawyer, on behalf of the special commission presented the tablet to the state and Governor Cox accepted it on behalf of the commonwealth.

Representative Sawyer

"We honor these men because they were comrades of the young, clear-eyed, dauntless thousands who served us in the World War," said Rep. Sawyer. "The memorial is also a tribute to the highest civic spirit. These men joined in armed conflict, not because they loved war, but because they loved their country enough to go to war."

"These men honor the church and the church may well honor them. No man's land was not the place for petty differences—only the great fundamentals could exist. When anyone in the future shall guide the stranger's steps and point out where men were put in the stocks, their noses bit or even shaved or even hanged because of religious differences, let them come into the state house and point out a tablet which depicts a Protestant minister and a Catholic priest bending in loving tenderness over a dying patriot, administering the last comfort of religion to the brave soldier."

The representative said that these four chaplains were representative of all the chaplains who served the country in the great World War.

Gov. Cox's Address

"In our state houses are gathered and cherished the precious relics of all the wars in which sons of Massachusetts have fought. Here are preserved the flags of country and commonwealth which they have carried to victory. Here masterly paintings tell the story of our ancestors' struggle for independence and of their happy day when a vast nation returned to their homes, having completed the work of preserving the union as one and inseparable. Here is recorded the contribution of those who carried freedom and enlightenment to Cuba, to Porto Rico, and to the Philippines. How appropriate that now we should commemorate the sacrifice and valor of the men of our own day and generation, who sailed to foreign shores and there fought and died that the light of hope for humanity might be kept burning and bright."

"As the representative of the people of Massachusetts and with the reverent appreciation which is in their hearts, accept this beautiful tablet in memory of the Massachusetts chaplains who gave their lives on the altar of patriotic service to country."

"Rev. Captain Walton S. Danker, Chaplain 104th U. S. Infantry, Lieut. Father William F. Devitt, Chaplain 126th U. S. Infantry, Lieut. Father and all carried American flags. Prior to and during the formation of the parade, Altkin's 25-piece band gave a concert and also accompanied the picknickers to the grounds and made merry music throughout the day.

The first division of the parade contained the car of the commonwealth with Gov. Channing Cox and escort. Next in order were Congressman Rogers, Mayor Brown and Chairman Harry Pitts, followed by the real attraction—the children.

Arrive at Grounds

At the appointed hour, the destination was reached and the half-mile of cars unloaded their youthful burden and the day's activities got under way as per schedule. After checking up the kiddies, a bounteous luncheon was served, and appetites, whetted by the country ozone, were quickly appeased with the ready distribution of the inviting sandwiches, which consisted of two ham sandwiches, a chocolate eclaire, a large cookie and a pickle parcapita. In addition to the above, 75 gallons of orangeade, 12 cases of Moxie and 1200 bottles of pasteurized milk made a hearty disappearance. Henry Driscoll presided at the ice cream table. D. J. MacDougall at the orangeade, E. J. Wiggins and Lewis H. Studley at the pop-corn and Harry Thompson at the Moxie. The 1200 bottles of pasteurized milk were donated by Lowell milk dealers whose names have all appeared in The Sun in connection with the outing. The milk constituted a splendid contribution to the outing and was much appreciated on all sides.

A full hour's feasting completed, a Punch and Judy show was presented to the mutual amusement of youngsters and elders alike. A clown of broad proportions and of excessive avoidfulness provided additional entertainment with his contributions to the fun column and a Magnovox attachment on a Victrola recorded pleasant music.

Through the courtesy of John W. Keenan of the park department, local playground instructors had been generously loaned for the occasion to supervise athletics and teach the children games. All necessary equipment for the carrying out of this part of the program was conveniently at hand, and under the direction of Arthur Sullivan, assistant supervisor of the city's playgrounds, an endless list of sporting events and games was carried out.

Assisting in the conduct of these latter were the following: the Misses May Kelley, Marjorie Leach, Olga Shay, Charlotte Green, Mary Dowd, Helen Charles, Ruby Blinn, Barbara Brown and James and Ray Liston. Miss Anne Taylor, head of the Massachusetts mill welfare work, was in attendance as nurse, and looked after the comparatively few ill of the "little orphan Annie's."

In the waning hours of the afternoon, the children of the French-American orphanage were entertained with a recital of popular and patriotic airs, "La Marseillaise" being especially well rendered. Diminutive Willie Jafferiere conducted the singing with the ease and grace of a professional and was roundly applauded for his effort.

Before departing, Governor Cox addressed the gathering and paid a glowing tribute to the Rotarians, through whose united effort the success of the day was made possible. At the conclusion of his talk, the governor was accorded three lusty and resounding cheers by the children.

The silver cloud that had hovered over the pine-clad grounds had darkened later in the afternoon, for about 4 o'clock the envious weather man despatched blacklike clouds in the direction of the grounds, presaging rain. Hurriedly the trucks and touring cars were again boarded in an effort to land the kiddies safely home as quick as possible. Thunderous peals, every one becoming more and more voluminous, heralded the approach of a coming storm which finally broke with a vengeance. With the exception of the occupants of two trucks, all of the children were under cover before the rain started. But this did not dampen their ardor, and as the truck conveying the Day Nursery children passed through the square an route to the First street home, the occupants cheered in defiance of the storm, and though soaked to the skin, their countenances revealed nothing but pleasure.

Children from the orphanages were more fortunate in that they rode in covered trucks or touring cars. Sister Ladwinn of St. Peter's, who had charge of the contingent from that home, is loud in her praise of the Rotarians, Mrs. Amanda Nelson of the Day Nursery, Mrs. Mary Lambert of the O'Leary home, Sister Theophile of the French-American orphanage and Mrs. Walter Parr of the Ayer home, all reported the utmost satisfaction over the affair and are extending congratulations to the members of the Rotary club for their kindness in behalf of the children in their care.

Big Day All Around

The day had been an eventful one for the kiddies and their guardians, and one which will be recorded in the annals of the Lowell Rotary club as one of the biggest and most productive of its many events.

The following energetic committee was in charge: Harry Pitts, chairman; Hutchins H. Parker, Walter H. Jones, Alvah H. Weaver, William A. Mitchell, Thomas Lees, Benjamin D. Pousner, Robert W. Thomson, Harry G. Pollard and P. Leroy Pancher.

Splendid Work in Middlesex

Effective Campaign Against Tuberculosis in Towns Nearby Lowell

Modern Health Crusade in Schools Pertinent Factor in Success Attained

Citizens of Middlesex will be interested in the report to the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League of Miss A. Gertrude Hines, local worker for the league in the northern portion of the county. The league undertakes this work in co-operation with the North Middlesex County Tuberculosis Association and the Massachusetts state department of public health. This combination secures effective work for the smaller towns and avoids duplication of effort. It also secures for the examination clinics, an institution that the advice of the expert physicians attached to the state sanatoria for the benefit of the children.

Work has been done in no less than a dozen of the towns of northern Middlesex, some of the details of which follow. These constitute a story of helplessness to those who most need help, the children of families of moderate or little fortune financially. An ambitious program has been outlined by the league, which includes the organization of the Modern Health Crusade in the schools, follow-up of tuberculosis cases in towns where there is no local nurse to do the work, helping local nurses by advice and by arranging for the examination of suspicious cases, arranging examination clinics for under-nourished children, and the follow-up in watching these children and in helping their mothers carry out the instructions of the physicians.

The work in the towns has not been along stereotyped lines, but has been intelligently modified to fit the needs of the individual town. In Tyngsboro, with the co-operation of the school physician, Dr. Lambert, and the school nurse, Mrs. Michael, the Modern Health Crusade was introduced into the schools, the children were weighed and measured and the underweight little ones were given a mid-morning lunch by the local association. In June, when preparations were made for the examining clinic, it was found that most of the children had gained weight and were normal. At the clinic in June, however, 18 children were examined, 10 of whom were underweight and 22 were found to be more than 8 per cent below normal. An examining clinic was arranged with 14 children attending.

In Stow the Modern Health Crusade was organized and is to be continued next year on account of the interest of teachers and children. Grades 1, 2 and 3 in the schools made posters and the children in 4, 5 and 6 presented a health play. Adult tuberculosis cases were followed up and resident cases are under observation.

In Townsend reported cases of tuberculosis have been followed up. It is expected that in the fall there will be a town school nurse and Modern Health Crusade work will be started as well as nutrition classes. Groton is to begin the Modern Health Crusade in the fall. In Acton there has been found a case of tuberculosis rather with two small children and efforts have been made to get the physician to induce the father to enter a sanatorium. Otherwise the children are likely to become infected.

In Buxboro the children of four rural schools were weighed and measured. Ten per cent were found to be seriously underweight. The crusade was organized in the spring in the school. In addition the nurse has been helped by advice in arranging the clinics. The same is true in Chelmsford with the nurse appointed this spring. In Carlisle an outbreak of diphtheria closed the schools, preventing the weighing and measuring that was in immediate prospect. In Burlington the nurse has only recently been appointed, so that work here is in prospect.

Preparations were made in Billerica for an examining clinic, but on account of a misunderstanding it has been postponed till fall. In the crusade was organized last fall, more than 100 children earning the advanced order of Knight. Children in a number of schools were weighed and measured, leading up to the examining clinic of June 30, which was attended by 48 children.

The programs for the coming season will include the continuation of past efforts, and it is hoped to include a series of nutrition classes based on the work of Dr. W. R. P. Emerson of Boston.

North Middlesex county has every reason to be proud of the work accomplished in its smaller municipalities, and the report of Miss Hines is evidence of the activity of the league, which is a federation of local tuberculosis associations, helping in projects too difficult to be undertaken by single towns, and bringing to their benefit all the latest and best thought in this all-important matter, the war against tuberculosis.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

A very pretty miscellaneous shower was held last evening in honor of Miss Adelaide Harndon of 305 Fairmount street, who is soon to become the bride of Mr. Hugh Gallagher, a popular young resident of Centralville. The special feature of the evening was a mock marriage. Miss May Harkins taking the part of the bride and Miss Florence Donohue, the groom. Solos were rendered by Miss Anna Powers and Miss Mollie Rourke. Miss Helen Birchell entertained with a specialty dance and Mrs. Tully and Miss Mary Gallagher recited. Miss Harndon received many beautiful and useful gifts. A buffet luncheon was served and the party broke up at a late hour, everyone wishing the bride-to-be much happiness. The affair was in charge of Miss Alice Thomas and Miss Florence Harndon.

BEHOLD PROPERTY SOLD

The property of Adelaide Beland at 216 Mt. Hope street, corner of Sixth avenue, consisting of three tenements and 5000 square feet of land, was sold yesterday to Francis Lanoie. The sale was through the office of St. Pierre & Bergeron.

The industrial accident board is doing a lot of good work at the present time in trying to place the injured employees back in industry and on jobs that are suitable for them. It might be advisable for each mill to consider every accident case and ascertain whether or not the injured employee was properly placed when he first came to work. Such a procedure would undoubtedly result in the saving of a good many days' lost time to the employee, and also in a saving to the mill.

WOULD WORK INJURY TO STATE OF MAINE

BANGOR, Me., July 19.—Declaring that absentee landlordism has never been a success, President Percy R. Todd of the Bangor & Arundel railroad stated at a hearing yesterday before the state committee on the New England consolidation that either one of the two plans presented would work great injury to the state of Maine. With the Maine roads in the hands of directors living outside the state, this section, he said, could hope for little consideration, especially in dealings in which the adjacent sections are in competition.

MAY RECEIVE MEDAL

Springfield Soldier at Camp Devens in Line for More Honors.

CAMP DEVENS, July 19.—Coincident with the announcement by the doctors that, unless something unforeseen develops, he stands an excellent chance of complete recovery, Private William D. Davis of 122 Williams street, Springfield, overseas veteran, member of 101st Motor Transport Company, 26th Division Trains, M.C.G., yesterday received a personal letter from the general commanding the Massachusetts brigade, which letter was afterwards published throughout the entire command.

Davis was nearly burned to death last Sunday, when he saved more than 30 motor trucks from burning. By his heroic act he undoubtedly prevented the explosion of 750 gallons of gasoline. Gov. Cox is to receive a formal report of the whole affair with the general's recommendation that Massachusetts shall award Davis a Distinguished Service Medal.

In part the general's letter to Davis follows: "In behalf of the 3000 officers and men of the National Guard now on duty at Camp Devens, Mass., I desire to express to you our sincere appreciation and pride in the remarkable heroism and self-sacrifice exhibited by you on July 16.

"It is because of the exhibits of such courage and devotion to the safety of others that the people of this state have been proud of their soldiery and glad to confer upon them the privilege, with its accompanying responsibility, of bearing in peace as in war, the name of this great commonwealth.

You by your conduct in sacrificing promptly and bravely your own safety that the lives of your comrades might not be further endangered have further added to the glorious deeds of her sons."

Since early yesterday morning the booming of guns and the chatter of rifles and machine guns have echoed throughout this camp, and an airplane could be heard above all the other din. The Massachusetts men had their first taste this year of combat work. The entire 101st Regiment was on the main parade field at 8 o'clock, and they made an attack on an imaginary enemy.

They were supported by field artillery which fired blank shells from 75-millimeter guns. Overhead circled an airplane from Minnesota, and the Massachusetts men signaled the flyer by means of rockets and panels, the signals being passed by the airplane by wireless to the headquarters in the rear of the attacking troops.

It is very realistic and thoroughly enjoyed by the men, despite the withering heat, which was intense even during the early hours of the morning, and which increased in intensity as the day wore on, until yesterday was nearly as hot as a week ago yesterday, when a number of men collapsed.

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLDS SKILLED AS CROOKS

PITTSFIELD, July 19.—Judge Thayer of Worcester, in superior court yesterday, afternoon, stated that in recent years he has discovered more skill in crime in boys ranging from 16 to 18 years of age than was formerly found in men who had spent all their lives in criminal acts. Only recently, he said, parents brought before him 11-year-old twins who were skilled as crooks.

The judge's talk was addressed to Sumner Richards, an 18-year-old boy with a court record, who was in court charged with breaking and entering. He was found guilty and sentenced to the house of correction for seven months.

The average individual remembers three-fifths of what he sees and one-fifth of what he hears.

MILL HAZARDS AND HOW TO AVOID THEM

Issued by the Massachusetts Safety Council

By R. E. PLACE, the Employers' Liability Assurance Corp., Ltd.

One phase of accident work that has not been given a great deal of consideration to date is the proper placing of the employee at his work.

Until recently most concerns, including textile mills, have been inclined to let each overseer hire his own help without any instruction. Sometimes the employees were chosen without thought as to whether or not they were suitable for the job that was open. Other overseers have learned by their long experience just what physical and mental characteristics and traits were necessary for the proper carrying out of the work in their department. Many of the overseers seldom used any other method except the old-fashioned one of "cut and try." By this we mean the hiring of an employee and later, if he did not prove satisfactory, his release and the hiring of another.

Most textile mills are beginning to realize that the employee who has frequent accidents is an expensive man for the mill to have on its payroll. By accidents we mean accidents that involve lost time and which require the doubling up in the room or the replacing of the injured worker with another.

Lately more and more attention has been paid to the correct placing of the worker in order to make sure that he would not have to be replaced in a short time. This was especially true during the war when the supply of labor was small, and when most employers were doing all they possibly could to keep their workers contented.

There are various characteristics that should be considered in placing a man in the textile industry. It is essential that the inspectors in the clothroom have good eyesight. It is also true that spooler tenders have very quick and agile fingers in order that they may keep their end up and so get out the maximum production. For yardmen and those who are obliged to handle the bales of cotton, a strong, healthy man is required, who is not too tall or too short. It is necessary to employ the right type of man in the finishing room, especially around the calendars, where the heavy rolls of cloth are lifted and also where the cloth is run through the calendar rolls. This job requires a man who is able to stand up under the steady strain of lifting and yet one who is quick enough to keep his fingers out of the calendar rolls.

Then there is the purely mental type of worker, such as shipping clerks, overseers, clerks and so forth, who are not required to do any physical work, but have a considerable amount of writing and figuring.

One of the greatest difficulties comes in the placing of the wrong type of employee on heavy jobs such as lifting heavy bales of cotton, boxes of roving, rolls of cloth, etc., and so forth. The employment calls for considerable exertion in the way of lifting, pulling or pushing, and for individuals who have not been previously so employed it is often hazardous.

As a large portion of all hernias occurs from the improper placing of the employee on the above jobs, overseers in general should use good judgment in considering applicants for this kind of work. If the object to be moved seems too heavy to be handled safely without more help, extra help should be obtained. False, including tripping, tumbling and slipping, sometimes, and a badly strained back results in a large amount of lost time.

Great care should be used in placing young employees under the age of 21 in order to make sure that they are not put on jobs that require an undue amount of physical exertion, and a large number of lost time accidents could be avoided if the younger employees are watched to see that they report instantly all minor cuts, splinters, etc., so that infections will not result.

In one instance there were two deaths which resulted from the improper placing of employees. One man over 15 was required to carry a large amount of roving from one floor to another, and the strain proved too much for his heart. The other case was where a man of advanced age was assisting in the piling of cotton in the cotton shed and in trying to

(Special to The Sun)
 BOSTON, July 19.—Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook states that up to date he has distributed to candidates for office 50,000 nomination papers as against 30,000 two years ago. Evidently voters are going to have an abundance of candidates to pick from in the elections this year. In addition to the primary papers the secretary has issued 1000 papers to independent candidates, who are not going to enter the primaries but who make their debut election day.
 The largest number of papers taken out by any particular candidate is by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge in whose interest 2000 papers are in circulation. Senator Lodge is required by law to secure only 1000 signatures but it is expected that the remainder of his papers will be used for local endorsement.

FREIGHT CARS PILE UP IN MARSHES

WEST SCARBORO, Me., July 19.—Thirteen loaded freight cars from a train bound to Portland from Boston were piled up on the marshes one mile east of here today on the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad. No one was hurt.
 Traffic at that point was blocked the greater part of the day, trains being sent over the western division at "McIntire's cut," the dropping of a brakeman was said to have been responsible for the wreck.

MAY RETURN MONEY TO WAR PROFITEERS

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Passage of a bill by Senator Elkins, republican, West Virginia, to remit the fines of persons convicted during the war of profiting in food has been recommended by the department of justice.
 Robert H. Lovett, assistant attorney general, has advised the legislation in view of the fact that the supreme court declared void a section of the food control act, under which fines were imposed. The court's decision gave convicted persons the right to sue for return of fines paid.

RED SPEED WAGON
 One of the big features of the Red Speed Wagon is its truly marvelous motor. If there is really any one unit that, more than any other, accounts for the stamina and the long life of the Red Speed Wagon, it is in the power plant. The Red Service Station, 660 Middlesex street, now under the management of Mr. Daniel E. McGuire, who is so well known in Lowell that he needs little or no introduction, reports many sales, and prospective truck buyers would take a step in the right direction by getting the finest of the Red speed wagon and have them explain and demonstrate the many advantages and super features of the Red Speed Wagon.

AUTO NEWS
 Tomorrow the plant of Blount & Stevens, Middlesex street, will be shut down tight, for early in the morning the employees of the place will start on an all-day trip to Provincetown and return.

The Donovan Harness and Auto Supply company, Market street, is offering very attractive prices on tires. They have probably one of the finest lines to choose from in the way of accessories to be found in New England.

Pellon & O'Hair are kept busy this weather and the increased driving is apparent at their place of business in Third street.

Bus Overturned; Eleven Injured

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 19.—Eleven persons were injured when a motor bus carrying passengers from the Toronto steamer turned turtle on a hill near the Canada Steamship Line's dock at Queenston, Ont., today.

Lunchers Sprayed By Spring

NEW YORK, July 19.—While scores were eating in a restaurant near Bryant Park a bit of tiling from the floor with a pop like that of a champagne cork, mounted ceilingward, pushed by a stream of water that drenched guests at surrounding tables and flooded the dining room. No leaks in the pipes could be located. Engineers said the water came from springs that used to flow through the park nearby, but had been diverted in building construction work.

REATEST INCREASE MYSTERY IN BURIAL OF UNRECORDED BODY

Membership of Buildings and Loan Associations Makes Big Gains

PORTLAND, Me., July 18.—The latest increase in the membership of buildings and loan associations ever recorded in a year, was reported for the year by H. F. Cellarius of Cinnanti, secretary of the United States league of local buildings and loan associations at the annual meeting of the league today.

"Eight hundred and forty-seven sound new members were enrolled in the United States last year," he said. "An increase of more than 17 per cent. The total membership now numbers 5,809,888. Total resources of these associations are $1,850,784,621, or an increase for the year of $370,849,500, or nearly 15 per cent."

The housing shortage has not been alleviated although building associations have been drawn upon to the utmost for loans for these purposes. Unfortunately unemployment caused a greater volume of withdrawal than loans and this reduced the amount available for mortgage loans. During 1920 the building associations loaned $770,000,000 for home buying or home owning purposes, but last year only about $693,000,000 of their funds could be thus invested. The current year is showing a substantial improvement."

IF YOU WANT TO EXCHANGE ANYTHING TRY A SUN GLASSIFIED AD

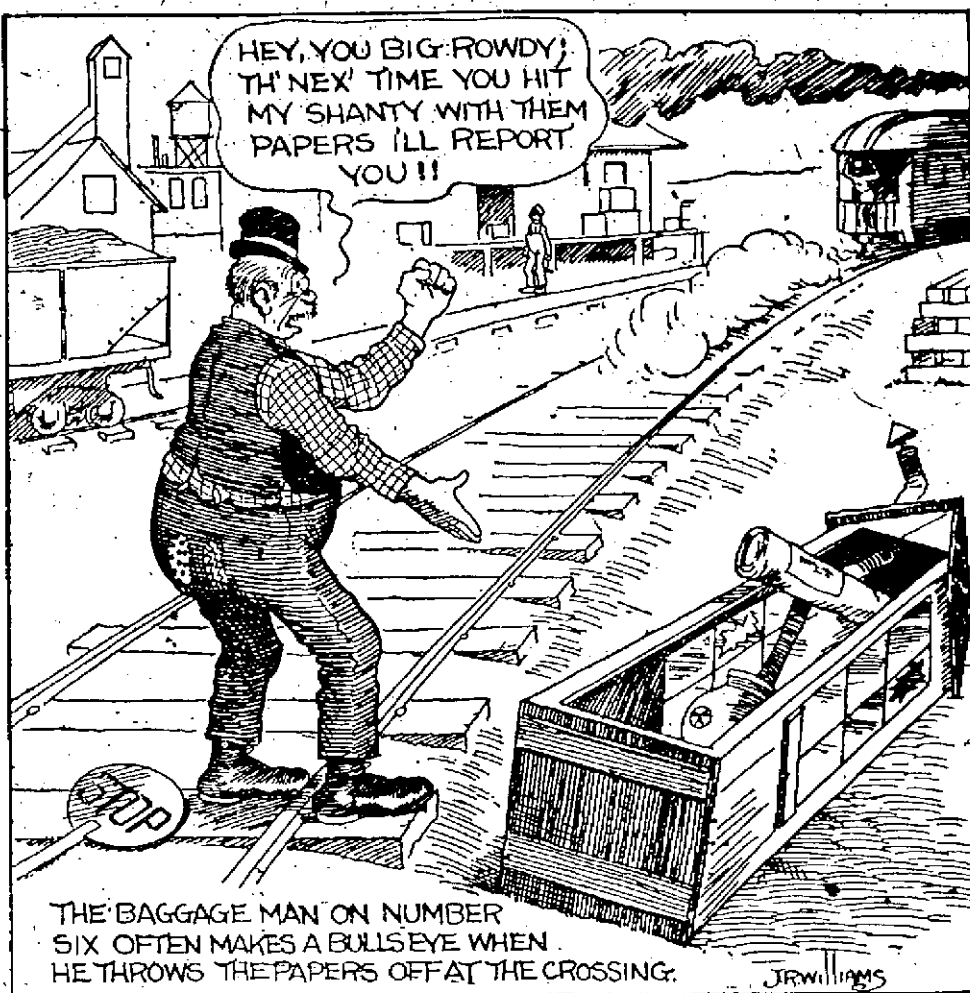

WOBURN, July 18.—Officers of the Congregational Anahel Liebovitz cemetery had a mystery on their hands today in the finding in the cemetery of a body, for the burial of which there was no record.

Harry Kritzer, caretaker of the burying ground, dropped dead last Monday after being confronted by the undertaker's assistant whom he had accused of bringing the body to the cemetery without a burial permit last February. Morris Gold, the assistant, flatly denied Kritzer's statements. Grave diggers last week found that a casket had been buried in a plot which, according to the records, was empty. When Kritzer was questioned as to the body's presence, he told officers of the cemetery association that Gold, in bringing the casket to the burying ground, had said he would mail the permit, but he never did so. At this juncture Gold drove into the cemetery and was brought before Kritzer. The caretaker is said to have pointed a finger at the assistant and then toppled to the ground. He died within an hour.

AMNESTY PETITION SIGNED BY MILLION

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Approximately a million signatures were said to be attached to the petition asking a grant of amnesty to the remaining 87 "war opinion" prisoners, which was brought here by a delegation today for presentation to President Harding. The petition was circulated by the general defense committee of Chicago. Members of the delegation included Morris Hillquit of New York and Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, wife of the senator from Wisconsin.

ROBBED OF $230; SAILORS ARRESTED

BOSTON, July 19.—Edward Tymark of Port Amboy, N. J., who arrived here by boat early today was attacked and robbed of $230 by three sailors when he stepped into a doorway in the financial district to escape a severe electrical storm. He called for help as soon as his attackers left him and three sailors found nearby were arrested. Police said that a sum of money which was identified by Tymark as that taken from him was found in the patrol which took the sailors to the police station.

A MENACE TO HEALTH

Recently we have received considerable propaganda in opposition to a bill passed by the national house and now before the senate agriculture committee, the aim of which is to prohibit the shipment of skimmed milk compounds on the ground that they are an adulterated and deleterious article of food and, therefore, a menace to the public health.

We are certainly in favor of the bill and hope it will pass for the reason that thousands of poor people who do not know the worthlessness of skim-milk as a food would use it for children and otherwise to the detriment of their health. Instances are not lacking where poor people have suffered irreparable injury by using skimmed milk in much the same way as proposed here.

About twenty years ago, or a little more, a great number of co-operative creameries were established in Ireland. Previously the farmers had made their own butter for the market and used buttermilk freely in the family and sweet milk in its entirety for young children. But after they began to skim the milk and send the cream to the creameries, very little whole milk was kept, and instead of buttermilk, the skimmed milk was used. As a result the children and many young people of both sexes soon began to show signs of being undernourished. Soon consumption became prevalent and the death rate from this disease was greater than ever before, greater than in most other countries of the world. The doctors and statesmen began to investigate and very promptly it was found that this state of debility resulted from the use of skimmed milk instead of buttermilk and whole milk.

The people had learned an expensive lesson, and it took a long time to pull down the high rate of deaths from consumption.

The same would happen in any country where the people are poor and where skim-milk products, ingeniously compounded, deceive the unwary when offered for sale.

TEACH ALL TO SWIM

The unfortunate fatality at the municipal bathhouse yesterday goes to swell the evidence that this swimming pool is too dangerous for boys or those who are not expert swimmers. It is all right for a few yards from the shore but beyond that point the water suddenly deepens so that a great many youngsters get beyond their depth before they know it and if they cannot swim or if they venture out for a little distance and become exhausted they are exposed to danger of drowning unless relief is at hand. It seems that the park department should keep a life saver at the swimming pool from early morning until late at night. The department cannot be held responsible for the death of the victim in yesterday's drowning, but notices should be posted prohibiting bathing in the swimming pool except when the life savers are on duty.

This additional fatality is but another proof of what we suggested as a necessary step in teaching all children to swim. This could be done without danger to anybody in the pond on the South common if the water were just a little deeper. There could be no better place for teaching children to swim than this pond and if an instructor were there for certain hours every day, we venture to say that he would have a large number of pupils anxious to learn the nautical art. Parents would readily send their children to the South common, but they will not allow them to go to the municipal swimming pool and for that they cannot be blamed in view of what has happened.

INSTITUTE OF POLITICS

The second annual Institute of Politics to be held at Williamstown in this state from July 28 to Aug. 26 will be an event or series of events that will attract attention not only throughout the United States but in other countries for the reason that the list of lecturers embraces prominent speakers from all the leading countries of Europe and at least one from Japan. Harry A. Garfield, chairman of the Institute, will have a big job on his hands in harmonizing the various elements represented in the program. David F. Houston, former secretary of the treasury, will take a prominent part in the discussion and in this he will be associated with Paul M. Warburg, the well known financier of New York. "A British outlook of the International Scene" will be the topic chosen for six public lectures by Daniel Curtis, who served as secretary of the Irish peace conference. According to reports, this second session of the Institute will comprise some three hundred leaders in the field of political science, representing 25 states and numerous foreign countries. The Institute lives on publicity and doubtless the newspapers will give considerable space to many of the speakers inasmuch as it appears that some very delicate subjects are set down for discussion. It is probable that there will be a great output of propaganda for various international schemes and modern reforms as the proponents of such movements never lose an opportunity of that kind to advance their cause.

TO SETTLE STRIKES

The Lawrence city council after a conference with representatives of the United Textile Workers of America adopted a resolution expressing the belief that the textile strike should be arbitrated before an impartial board. It was also voted to notify Governor Cox of the action taken with a view to interesting the state authorities in the possibility of settling the labor conflict at Lawrence. The state board of arbitration and conciliation is powerless to render any assistance in settling the strike for the reason that it has no authority to interfere unless requested by both parties in the controversy. The laws should be changed in this respect so that where a conflict is prolonged as in the case of these textile strikes the board would be empowered to force a settlement through arbitration. With such power used discreetly, a great many of the long drawn out conflicts could be quickly terminated and both parties thereby benefited. It would seem that the necessities of the present situation call for such a law and that if our legislators wish to promote industrial peace, they should make an effort to place such a law on the statute books of Massachusetts.

BUYING AND SELLING

The average shoe dealer last year lost money, the loss being about two per cent of net sales, according to a survey of business research of Harvard University.

Even when prices were highest, many retail merchants lost money, due partly to unfair practices by customers—such as getting a spool of thread delivered five miles or returning garments after wearing them once to a dance.

We need schools to teach people how to buy scientifically, more than we need schools of scientific salesmanship.

A four-year course in training students to be hotel managers will be started by Cornell University. We need similar schools for every industry. Few men who go into business for themselves make a success of it because it takes them a lifetime to learn what a school could teach in a few years.

To learn merchandising and management is harder than mastering astronomy or analytical trigonometry. It looks easy until you try it—as every apprentice finds when he is learning his trade.

LLOYD GEORGE'S DRESS

London tailors, the dictators of style in the higher classes of London society and sticklers for conventionality in dress, are horrified at the boldness of Premier Lloyd George in wearing a light gray suit while attending high official functions. Nothing of this kind was ever attempted by any other British premier in the memory of those now living; but Lloyd George has done many things that his predecessors in office never thought of attempting. The present premier has lately paid particular attention to his dress, but he has not followed the mandates of the dictators of style, whereat they are much annoyed. They must realize that Lloyd George is fast becoming a law unto himself in reference to the observance of the stereotyped customs. He has an idea that personal comfort and good taste should have more weight in deciding the summer raiment than the dictum of the tailors who have become the arbiters of style in men's wear but only for those who wish to accept their dictation and pay the price.

CANCELLING WAR DEBTS

Premier Lloyd George has made the statement that England will never be able to pay the United States' war loan. It is not very long since another high British authority stated that England would pay her indebtedness to the United States to the last dollar. Nevertheless the movement for cancellation proceeds and it is prolonging the movement for the refunding of the debt, which has been under way now for over six months.

Germany wants a reduction in the indemnity prescribed by the allies from 132 to 50 billion gold marks. England is willing to concede Germany's demand and promises to cancel the French debt to her, but then comes a corollary that it would be necessary for the United States to cancel its loans to England. There is the difficulty.

AGENT AND OPERATIVES

Nothing has been said or done since our local mill troubles started to show such a good feeling on the part of the operatives for their employers as the expressions of regret by the strikers on leaving the Massachusetts mills, that conditions obliged them to strike in a mill conducted by an agent who had shown such great personal interest in their welfare. But they blamed the system and the higher officials, not the agent. Moreover, this expression of regret by the operatives showed a fine sense of intelligent and humane appreciation of the friendly relationship that should exist between employer and employee. But the strike, in plain, will not sever the bond of friendship that exists between Agent Mitchell and his employees.

OLD GAMES COME BACK

More than 1,000,000 Americans have taken up horseshoe pitching, says the magazine Horseshoe World. This ancient game still runs neck-and-neck with radio. Horseshoe pitchers will hold their national tournament at Des Moines, Ia., beginning August 28. Croquet is another "old-fashioned" game that is sweeping back into popularity. The best metropolitan sporting goods houses are selling croquet outfits. Fads always come back, like the rubber ball you used to bounce against the barn, back home.

The Jague conference is at the point of collapse over the failure of Russia to offer guarantees and conditions that the other conferees could accept. So much the worse for Russia.

"Come, gentlemen," says the president of the miners, "open up and begin digging coal," and they will begin.

Sunday's loss of life by drownings and auto fatalities was appalling.

SEEN AND HEARD

The tariff boosts wool and the strike boosts coal. It will be easy to keep cool next winter.

"He knocked me down 30 times," said a Kentucky woman seeking for divorce. Thirty is too many.

If the children of the local orphanage should be asked their favorite club, would they say "Voluntary?"

Lowell high school has asked little enough of her alumni in the past, let's not throw her down now.

When it is too awfully hot, think back a couple of months, when you longed for a sign of summer.

The Sound of a Voice

Joseph Lucier, blind musician, has an unusually keen memory for voices. At Onset last week he instantly recalled the voice of a friend whom he had not heard in 11 years. "I'll bet you don't know who I am," said James Sawin of Detroit, clapping Mr. Lucier on the back. "You're Jim Sawin," said the blind man. "You were leader of the minstrel troupe I was with 11 years ago."

Use Your Head

A woodpecker pecks out a great many pecks.

Of sawdust when building a hut, He works like a nigger to make the hole in his head.

And he's sore if his cutter won't cut. He won't bother with plans of cheap artichokes.

But there's one thing can rightly be said. The whole excavation has this explanation: He builds it by using his head.

Throw Her Into Night

The new era that is upon us will be an era of unbelievable speed. The following incident is not fiction; it's a prophecy. A young man of A. D. 1920 took an airing, so to speak, in a swift and powerful 2000-horse-power airplane. "That's England," he was approaching," he said. They lived in Australia. "British Isles, you know. Pretty little group they make, don't they?" "I don't see them," said the girl anxiously. "Where are they?" "Oh," said the young man, "we've passed them now."

Who Said, "Back to the Farm?"

Stopping his plow at noon a few days ago, the son of W. A. Glaze, a farmer in Bland, Mo., went to the house for dinner. On his return he found the plow stepped over the brink of a cavern 70 feet across and so deep he couldn't see the bottom. The dirt was still tumbling in, but during a lull a crowd of men and boys dropped a rope into the huge hole and found it 112 feet to the bottom. The plow hasn't been recovered as yet and if the underground cavern claims much more ground there won't be any farm left.

Advanced Mathematics

The sergeant-major was reaching the end of his patience in his examination of the recruit squad and so deep he couldn't see the bottom. The dirt was still tumbling in, but during a lull a crowd of men and boys dropped a rope into the huge hole and found it 112 feet to the bottom. The plow hasn't been recovered as yet and if the underground cavern claims much more ground there won't be any farm left.

Two Twentifications, sir."

Today's Word

Today's word is "Incalculable." It's pronounced in-kal-ku-la-bul, with the accent on the second syllable. The I and first a are short. The u is as the u in unite, and the final a as the a in ask.

It means—beyond calculation or reckoning; not to be calculated.

It is a combination of in, meaning not, and calculable, meaning capable of being reckoned. Calculable comes from the Latin calculare, obtained from calculus, a pebble. Pebbles were used by the Romans in reckoning and casting accounts.

It's used like this—"The harm which would result from a prolonged tie-up of the nation's railroads is incalculable."

A Thought

Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil.—Ecclesiastes 8:11.

He stood upon the world's broad threshold; wide

The din of battle and of slaughter rose;

He saw God stand upon the weaker side,

That sank in teeming loss before its foes.

Many there were who made great haste and sold

Unto the cunning enemy their swords;

He scorned their gifts of fame and power and gold,

And underneath their soft and flowery words

Heard the cold serpent hiss; therefore he went

And humbly joined him to the weaker part.

—JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

Too bad the outing for the orphans of the city by the Rotary club should have been interfered with by such a terrific thunder storm. The Rotarians did everything possible to give the children an ideal day's outing and that it certainly was until the storm came.

I notice that the sentiment everywhere throughout the city is strongly in favor of a high school athletic field. The cost will be insignificant as compared with the vast benefits to be derived by the youth of our city in the years to come.

The miniature cloudbursts of last night were the cause of some bad washouts on the Lawrence boulevard. They were particularly bad in the Glen Forest section where there is an abrupt hill along one side of the street. At each intersecting street there tons and tons of sand had been washed down the hill, completely covering the boulevard in some places. The tracks to Victory park, a dance hall in Glen Forest, were entirely buried and the car service had to be abandoned. The section of the street in front of the Lawrence water works was flooded and the water was even with the curbing. Several warning lights were placed there by city department men to acquaint the passing machines of the bad stretch. The water was so high that it seemed as though one were attempting to ford a stream.

There are on an average of 701 people to every square mile in England.

Foss Announces Campaign Issue

BOSTON, July 19.—Former Governor Eugene N. Foss, who last night became the fourth candidate for the democratic nomination for governor, announced today that he would make his campaign on the tariff issue. "The tariff is the big issue in this campaign," said Mr. Foss. "Senator Lodge in his speeches at Boston and Springfield said the issue upon which the republican administration will seek vindication is the tariff and I for one, am willing to accept that issue. The tariff bill now pending is distinctly hostile to the business interests of Massachusetts and all New England," he said.

BULLET HALTS BOY WHOM POLICE WANT

NORTH ADAMS, July 19.—Gilbert McCusky, 17, a state charge who had been working for W. H. Cross as a garbage collector, was arrested yesterday afternoon, after he had been called by a bullet. He was shot by Officer G. B. Chilson, who was searching for him. It is claimed McCusky was detected in the act of trying to break into the home of W. K. Greer on Holbrook street, yesterday morning. McCusky was seen by R. W. Illingsworth, a mail carrier, who called to him. He ran through back yards and escaped, eluding several men who were chasing him. He was later seen in lower State street and the officers went after him. He ran from a barn and across a field. Officer Chilson drew his pistol and fired a shot. The bullet went through the boy's blouse. He dropped, then submitted to arrest. At the police station he cried bitterly, declaring he could not help stealing. He is said to have admitted breaking into the homes of F. L. Dillon and L. A. Norcutt.

HALSEY WINS $2500 FOR FALSE ARREST

NEW YORK, July 19.—Raymond D. Halsey, a book salesman, yesterday won a long fight against the Society for the Suppression of Vice when the court of appeals upheld an award of $2500 made by a jury in the supreme court against the society for a false arrest of Halsey when he sold a copy of Gautier's "Mademoiselle de Maupin."

When he was acquitted of the charge of selling indecent literature, Mr. Halsey instituted suit for damages. At the first trial he obtained a verdict for $1300. The society succeeded in having this suit set aside on a technicality.

In the fall of 1920 a second trial was started, and a supreme court jury after reading "Mademoiselle de Maupin," decided that Halsey's arrest for selling the book was worth $700 more than the first jury awarded. It was this verdict which the court of appeals has upheld.

NUMBER MISLED BY OIL STOCKS

WASHINGTON, July 19.—An order to discontinue "false representations" in connection with the sale of oil stocks and securities has been issued by the Federal Trade commission against S. E. J. Cox, his wife and the Prudential Oil Co., all of Houston, Tex. The Prudential Oil & Refining, the Prudential Security Oil and the General Oil companies, all said to be promoted and controlled by the three respondents also were named. The commission said 1100 persons were shown by its investigation and hearings "probably to have been misled and deceived in the purchase of stock of the companies."

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

PROPHECY

In clubs and grills the toppers wait
Because they cannot still obtain
Their whiskey, beer and wine and ale
As when the land was wet as rain.
"Ah, well," they say, "this thing will wane,
In time we'll have the hooch we lack."
But though they talk in such a strain,
John Barleycorn ain't coming back.

Though you "can get it," sure enough,
If you will pay four prices for it,
It's terrible man-killing stuff
And folks with any sense abhor it;
Adown their throats the old soaks pour it,
But not with any joyous snick.
It is a fact, though some deplore it,
John Barleycorn ain't coming back.

For even bootleg hooch grows less
And worse as weeks and months go by;
In spite of hopes the soaks express,
The country's slowly getting dry.
The wets may grumble, moan and sigh
With thirsty tongues that parch and crack,
But here's the answer to their cry,
"John Barleycorn ain't coming back!"

Ease in attaching skid chains, security after attachment, greater gripping ability, are three ideas introduced in the manufacture of the latest chain products for automobile tires. All have the main purpose in mind making touring over muddy roads, wet pavements safer and less troublesome.

Actual experience gave a wholesale grocery salesman an idea for a skid chain, for the patent rights of which he says he has had an offer of $100,000. The salesman is Raymond L. Pepper, Fairmont, W. Va. He had to make daily trips over the rough West Virginia hill roads and on rainy days as stuck many a time in the mud, he slipped and skidded over these highways until the big idea came to him.

It was the manufacture of a skid chain with two additional chains, passing through the cross-links along each side of the tire. The additional chain lines proved a great help in lifting Pepper out of the mud and in pulling up the slippery hills. He has patented the idea and is manufacturing the chain. Better grip is also included in the design of two popular chains, but the chief novelty about these consists in a lever-like arrangement by which it is easier to attach the chain to the tire.

By this attachment the chain is pulled tight and locked securely.

DANA IS SHOWING NEW CADILLAC CARS

The automobile editor in his rounds finds Geo. R. Dana & Son, the Cadillac representatives, very busy in both sales and service. Dana, Sr., says the past eight months have been a repetition of conditions which have prevailed more often than otherwise the past eight years in that it has been very difficult to supply Cadillac cars without troublesome delay notwithstanding the factory has built more cars since January 1st than ever before in a like period in their history.

Dana & Son have, however, just succeeded, after months of endeavor, in securing for stock, four models of the new type 61 car and which they offer for immediate delivery. The success enjoyed by the Cadillac gives ample proof of its qualifications as a fine motor car and of which the current type is a splendid example. Inspection, demonstration or personal use of the new car by responsible parties is invited. The Dana Ad. appears in this issue of The Sun.

SPEED WAGON

A TRULY MARVELOUS MOTOR!

If there is any one unit that, more than any other, accounts for the stamina and the long life of the Reo Speed Wagon, it is the power plant.

We maintain that no other motor—and certainly none of lighter construction—can stand up beside this great Reo engine.

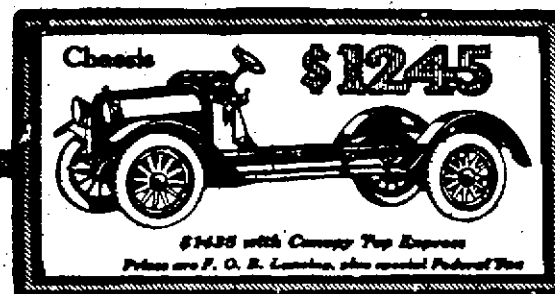

Experienced users—owners of individual trucks and of fleets—endorse our contention by standardizing on Reo Speed Wagons.

A matchless combination of brutal ruggedness in design, and of watch-work fineness in construction, this Reo motor has proven equal to the most strenuous work over a long period of years.

Until you have found an equal for this motor, it is futile to look for a truck that will stand up beside a Reo Speed Wagon.

HITCHCOCK IS RENOMINATED

Democratic Senator Sweeps All Before Him in Nebraska Primaries

R. B. Howell is Republicans' Choice for United States Senator

OMAHA, Neb., July 18 (By the Associated Press).—Senator G. M. Hitchcock and R. B. Howell, republican national committeeman, were nominated at yesterday's statewide primaries as democratic and republican candidates, respectively, for United States senator.

Senator Hitchcock's victory was sweeping. The combined vote of his two opponents, on the face of returns from approximately one-third of the state, was about half that cast for the incumbent senator.

The race between Dan B. Butler of Omaha and Charles W. Bryan, brother of William Jennings Bryan, for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, showed Butler leading with slightly more than one-third of the state heard from.

In the republican race for the nomination for governor, only a few hundred votes separated Charles H. Randall of Randolph and Adam McMullen of Beatrice.

Renomination of Congressman Robert O. Evans of the third congressional district on the republican ticket, and Congressman M. O. Laughlin of the fourth district was indicated.

In the second district, James H. Hanley of Omaha, former prohibition director for Nebraska, was nominated over his only opponent, Charles O. Anderson, also of Omaha. In the democratic race, W. C. Sears of Omaha was named by the republicans.

Edgar Howard of Columbus, a newspaper publisher and former lieutenant governor, apparently was nominated over P. F. O'Garra of Hartington, in the democratic third district congressional race.

Mrs. Irene C. Buell of Ashland, who sought democratic nomination in the fourth district, was running third. H. D. Cummings of Seward was first with Clifford Fall of Beatrice second.

In the first district Walter L. Anderson of Lincoln had a rather commanding lead.

ONE MOSQUITO ONE TOO MANY

KEARNY, N. J., July 19.—A lone Jersey "skeeter" which darted into the face of the driver was blamed yesterday for the overturning of a touring car carrying five persons at Dead Man's Curve Monday night. Louis Leont, driving with his wife and three children as passengers, felt a sudden sting on his face and swerved the car unconsciously. It overturned on a five-foot embankment. No one was seriously hurt.

SAYS FEDERAL MEN PUT ON PARTY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—Theodore Gier, owner of the Gier bonded warehouses in Oakland, yesterday told the United States district attorney that federal employees have been stealing wine from the warehouses and on one occasion held a party in the rum-cellar at which women were present. The federal intelligence bureau has ordered an investigation.

PLEASED BY ACTION
JERUSALEM, June 22 (By the Associated Press).—Inhabitants of Palestine, Moslems and Christians, are pleased that the British house of lords yesterday passed the Balfour declaration of 1917, which pledged the creation of a Jewish homeland in Palestine. The resolution passed yesterday set forth that "the mandate for Palestine in its present form is unacceptable to this house, because it directly violates pledges made by His Majesty's government to the people of Palestine."

ASKS THAT RECEIVER BE APPOINTED

Andrew F. Roach of this city has brought a bill in equity in the superior (civil) court at East Cambridge, claiming to be the owner of 38 shares of stock in the Lowell News Publishing Co., and setting forth that the corporation was dissolved by legislative act on March 31, 1922. He asks that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the estate and effects of the corporation. The order is returnable next Monday, July 24, but no date of hearing, has been fixed.

LIGHTNING STRUCK IN NO. BILLERICA

The home of Jeremiah Minihane in North Billerica was struck by lightning during yesterday afternoon's storm. The bolt struck one of the windows of the building and started a blaze, but the fire was put out by the firemen before any serious damage was done. A trolley pole near Sprague's bridge in the North village was hit and split through the centre, but it remained standing.

FOXGROVE, Mo., July 19.—Though the thermometer registered around 90 in the shade, Frank Hayes, who claims Boston as his residence, this morning ate four tins of canned heat and became wildly intoxicated. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Cowan, who found four more cans of the solidified alcohol on his person. He was sent to jail for 30 days by Judge Hayes, who remarked that it would allow him time to cool off.

7 PERSONS DROWNED

Death Toll Heavy Yesterday in Waters of Eastern Massachusetts

BOSTON, July 19.—Seven persons were drowned in eastern Massachusetts waters yesterday. The list included four boys, two young men and a young woman.

The body of Miss Eunice Adelman of this city was found in the water at Vineyard Haven. It is believed she went in bathing and was drowned.

Frank Caruth, 22, attempted the rescue of John Cronin, 21, in Gilbertville, when the latter fell from a raft. Both lost their lives.

Francis Hooley, 15, of Cambridge, died at the Cambridge City hospital after he was pulled from the Charles river.

Charles S. Thompson, 12, of Allston, was drowned in the Charles river near the Metropolitan Driving club in Brighton.

Roland Morin, 10, of Salem, was drowned while swimming in the swimming pool in Forest river park.

John Campbell, 16, of Lowell, was drowned in the municipal bathing pool.

Lux for washing dishes

Quick, rich, gentle suds—won't redden or roughen the hands

Three times a day in the dish pan—strong soap—any skin would redden or grow coarse.

But now your hands need not show tell-tale traces of dish washing. Lux won't redden or roughen them. It is just as easy on your skin as it is on your silks or woollens. The pure flakes bubble into a rich lather as gentle as a fine toilet soap.

Use Lux for china, silver and glassware. It leaves them sparklingly clean. And it rids your hands for good of that three-times-a-day-in-the-dish pan look.

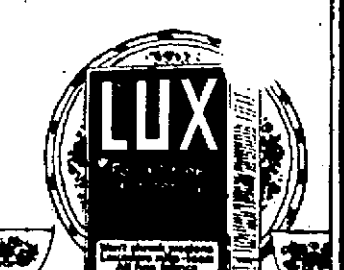

One package of Lux will last for 44 dish washings—more than two weeks. Start using it today. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Just a tablespoon to a pan. A single package does 44 dish washings—all the dishes for more than two weeks.

MINK SWALLOWS FISH BONE, CALLS FOR DR. SNUFFLES

"IS THAT VERY DANGEROUS, DOCTOR?"

"Ting-a-ling—a-ling," went Dr. Snuffles' telephone in his little house by the hazel bush.
 "Nick," answered that, please," called Dr. Snuffles. "I'm busy—taking a splinter out of Scramble Squirrel's foot."
 "Hello, is that Dr. Snuffles' office?" said a voice excitedly.
 "Yes," answered Nick.
 "Well, tell him please to hurry over to Hippie Creek. Marty Mink's got a fish-bone in his throat, and he's carrying on something awful."
 "All right," said Nick, hanging up. Just then Scramble Squirrel came hopping out of the office, his foot all neatly bandaged, and he heard what had happened.
 "Marty Mink!" he exclaimed. "A fish-bone in his throat. Goodness alive! He's that very dangerous, doctor!"
 "Oh, no, worry," answered Dr. Snuffles. "Why are you thinking of starting on a fish diet, Scramble, instead of nut?"
 "No," said Scramble. "I was just wondering what would happen if you couldn't get the fish-bone out of Marty Mink's throat."
 Dr. Snuffles called to Nancy to bring him his hat and medicine case before he answered.
 "Yes," said he, "it's this way—one is likely to lose his appetite as long as the fish-bone sticks."
 "Can't he eat anything at all?" exclaimed Scramble.
 "No," said the fairy doctor, "not a thing!"
 "Couldn't he eat frogs or field-mice or moles or blackbirds or chipmunks or rabbits—or anything. Not even squirrels!" asked Scramble.
 "No, nothing!"
 Suddenly Scramble departed without as much as a goodbye and running as fast as he could tear. He'd completely forgotten all about his sore foot.
 "Well, I declare!" exclaimed the doctor. "What do you suppose he's up to? He even forgot to pay me my 50 cents!"

Grand Jury Called to Investigate

WEDSBURG, W. Va., July 10.—Circuit Judge Sommerville, of Wheeling, has called a grand jury for Aug. 14 to investigate the battle at Clifton mine last Monday in which four persons were killed. Forty-eight persons are in custody. The miners' tent colony at Cliftonville has been dismantled.

To Assume Liability for Payment

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The Boston & Maine railroad today received interstate commerce commission authority to assume liability for payment of principal and interest of $1,816,000 in equipment trust certificates. The securities will be sold to finance purchases of new locomotives and cars for the railroad.

LISTED AS DEAD HE WORKS EVERY DAY

WORCESTER, July 19.—Louis A. Gilbert of Carlton street, West Millbury, is listed as dead on the official records of the United States war department, but he is working every day in the Worcester plant of the Wyman & Gordon company.

Gilbert served during the war as a private, first class, in the 9th Company, 3rd Battalion, 151 Depot Brigade, at Camp Devens, from July 15, 1918, until April 5, 1919, when he was discharged, suffering from a physical disability. For a time after his discharge he received government compensation for disability, but this suddenly stopped and he appealed to the Worcester chapter of the Red Cross.

An inquiry by the chapter officers revealed the fact that Gilbert had become listed as dead, so his compensation was stopped. The Red Cross started to have him restored by the government to the official land of the living.

LIMERICK SCENE OF HEAVY FIGHTING

DUBLIN, July 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—News reaching Dublin this morning confirms the earlier reports that heavy fighting occurred in Limerick, over the week-end, the national army troops succeeding in isolating the irregulars in the Strand barracks in King John Castle. Capture of the barracks is believed to be imminent.

Recent speculation on the supposed impending large scale operations against the republican insurgents in southwest Ireland seems to have moved the Free State government to check popular anticipation of an early march to triumph and peace.

The provisional government's newspaper, Truth, publishes an article emphasizing the difficulties to be met and warning the public not to expect immediate achievement of the task.

WAVES HANDKERCHIEF AND HALTS TRAIN

SAUGUS, July 19.—Howard C. Chapman waving a handkerchief in the path of a Boston & Maine train last night, attracted the attention of the engineer in time to prevent the locomotive from crashing into an automobile containing Miss Della St. Helway of Lynn, which had stalled on a crossing.

Miss Helway who was driving the machine, became confused when, emerging from behind a truck as she drove onto the crossing, she saw the approaching train. Mrs. E. H. Hodgkins of Lowell, Mass., who was with her, jumped from the car. Chapman, seeing the predicament of the women, sprinted down the tracks and was able to stop the train.

CONTRACT PAVING WORK

Board of Public Service
Instructs City Engineer to
Call for Bids

Asphalt paving will be laid on certain Lowell streets this summer by contract, according to action taken late yesterday afternoon by the board of public service, when it instructed the city engineer to call for bids for the furnishing of material and labor, bids to be opened early next week.

At a meeting of the board on Monday Chester B. Williams, representing the Framingham Construction Co., submitted a proposal for paving the foundation and grade and the company to lay the paving. Chairman Dennis J. Murphy did not wish to decide upon the proposal until the city engineer had been taken into conference relative to whether it would be legal to award a contract to the Framingham Co. based upon bids received from this concern early in the spring, but which were rejected along with others.

Solicitor Thorne's verbal opinion is that it would be wise to follow such a course and, therefore, new bids will be asked for and a contract awarded at the meeting of the board on the 27th.

The board yesterday approved a bill of $12,552.95, submitted by the Engineering Service & Construction Co. of Boston for extra work done on Central bridge up to and including Feb. 1, 1922. Although the bill now stands approved, the real job the company has on its hands is to collect the money from the city. At present the appropriation for bridge construction does not amount to much more than $6000, and the city auditor cannot issue a warrant until the fund is rehabilitated in some way.

The bridge matter again was discussed at length with John M. O'Donoghue, counsel for the Engineering Service Co., but no definite decision was reached on the point of who is responsible for the present condition of the structure.

It was agreed, however, that Mr. O'Donoghue shall address a letter to the board, setting forth that his company is willing to do the work which remains and later it will be decided whether that concern or some other will do the job.

DEATHS

NOONAN—Michael J. Noonan died this morning at his home, 67 Andover street, after a long illness. He was born in Ireland and spent all of his life here, being one of the oldest attendants of the Immaculate Conception church and a prominent and active member of the Holy Name society. He was married and had a family well known in the city and his death will be learned with profound sorrow by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. He was a native of the city. He received his early education in the local schools and later became associated with the street department. After several years' service, he was promoted to the position of street sweeper. He earned the machinist trade and was employed for many years at the Saco-Lowell shops. His health caused him to give up his work about three years ago. Since that time he has been failing. In his early years he was actively identified with local politics, although he never held public office. His death was announced by his wife, Mary (Canty) Noonan, two daughters, Misses Lauretta and Hilma Noonan, and a son, John, all of the Courter-Citizen Co., Thomas A. and James A. of this city, and Rev. William W. Noonan, D.D., at present of St. Anthony's church, 100 North Main street, Lowell. He is survived by his wife, Mary (Canty) Noonan, two daughters, Misses Lauretta and Hilma Noonan, and a son, John, all of the Courter-Citizen Co., Thomas A. and James A. of this city, and Rev. William W. Noonan, D.D., at present of St. Anthony's church, 100 North Main street, Lowell. He is survived by his wife, Mary (Canty) Noonan, two daughters, Misses Lauretta and Hilma Noonan, and a son, John, all of the Courter-Citizen Co., Thomas A. and James A. of this city, and Rev. William W. Noonan, D.D., at present of St. Anthony's church, 100 North Main street, Lowell.

WRIGHT—Mrs. Anna B. Wright died yesterday at the Lowell General hospital, aged 92 years. She leaves her husband, Harry S. Wright, one sister, Mrs. J. S. Bailey of Cambridge, and several nieces and nephews. She was a resident of Andover and a member of the Advent Christian church of Lawrence. The body was removed to 68 Varnum street, this city, by Undertaker W. Herbert Blake.

GEORFFROY—Mrs. Delima (Robillard) Geoffroy, wife of Wilfrid Geoffroy and a resident of this city for the past 21 years, died at her home, 23 Common street, last evening, aged 63 years, 11 months and 15 days. Besides her husband, she leaves one daughter, Mrs. Blanche Milette; one son, Armand Geoffroy; three grandchildren, all of this city; also four sisters, Mrs. Janet Gauthier of Concord, P. E., Mrs. Adeline Robillard of Pawtucket, R. I., Mrs. Prosper Robillard and Mrs. Georgeanna Robillard of St. Elizabeth, P. Q., and one brother, Prince Robillard of New Bedford.

HALLORAN—Elizabeth Halloran, aged 8 years, 7 months, died last evening at St. John's hospital. Besides her father and mother, she leaves one sister, Mary (Kennedy) Halloran, who leaves two sisters, Mary and Ellen; three brothers, John, Arthur and James. The funeral will take place Thursday morning at 9 o'clock from the home of her parents, 13 Lenox street. Funeral arrangements in charge of Higgins Bros.

ROACHE—Mrs. Della Roache, a well known and highly respected resident of St. Patrick's parish, died last evening at the home of her daughter, Catherine L. Dean, 975 Middlesex street. She leaves to mourn her loss three daughters, Mrs. Catherine L. Dean, Mrs. William Sheehan and Mrs. Timothy Keefe; three brothers, Thomas McMenimen of New York; one brother in California; and one brother in Ireland; one granddaughter, four grandchildren and one great-grandchild. She was a highly respected member of the "Married Ladies' sodality of St. Patrick's church.

BRENNAN—John P. Brennan, aged 60 years, died Wednesday morning at his home, 48 Sixth street. Mr. Brennan was a resident of Lowell for more than a half century and worked for many years for the O'Donnell & Gilbride Co. of late years he had been employed in Whitman, Mass. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. H. H. Brennan (Mullen) Brennan; three daughters, Mrs. B. J. Swallow of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. John Gorman and Ethel Brennan, one son, Albert Brennan and one grandson.

Heavy Electrical Storms
Played Over City Last
Night and Early Today

Yesterday's intense heat was broken with a vengeance shortly after 5 o'clock in the afternoon when the first of a continuous series of electrical storms played over the city. With the first storm came a regulation downpour that marooned hundreds of home-goers and placed a tax upon the street rail-roads that all but swamped them.

On through the evening and well into the night, thunder rolled and crashed as the heavens were split wide open by blinding shafts of vivid lightning and heavy showers were recurrent every hour or so. At 4 o'clock this morning it poured, but gradually diminished as dawn came on and it was fairly clear at daylight.

The city looked thoroughly drenched this morning and miniature lakes stood in many streets. In Westford street, where the roadway has been excavated to make room for the new paving, there was an unbroken pond from Dorchester to Wilder streets. The water level did not quite reach the top of the catch basins and as a result, had no outlet.

Not one of the storms reached the intensity of the ones of last Thursday when lightning struck in several places, but several seemed directly overhead and were heavy enough to saturate the most exacting inhabitants.

During the storm a bolt of lightning struck the home of Mr. Harrison on Littleton boulevard in Westford. The bolt struck the side of the house, tearing off the clapboards and passed through the ceiling, thence up through the wall and out through the window, where it destroyed part of a fence.

Mrs. Harrison, who was alone in the house at the time, was just leaving the room when the lightning struck and had a very narrow escape. She received a slight shock but soon recovered.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS FAIL

Kerosene Lamps Light Way
for Merry Dancers at Canobie Lake

Inky blackness outside, intermittent flashes of blue, the streaming yellow light of kerosene lamps, and the shadowy blending of vari-colored flames was the setting for the evening program of the Lowell Electric Light Corp. ending held yesterday afternoon and evening at Canobie lake.

Despite the elements, the young folks would not be denied their enjoyment and the motto of the night was "on with the dance and let joy be unconquered." Early in the evening the severe and continued electric storms put the lights in the dance hall out of commission but, with the adaptability of youth for every occasion, kerosene lamps were brought into use and the dance continued.

Later, every light in the park went out and the familiar surroundings faded from view. Flashlights were the order for the stygian darkness and the scene resembled a convocation of the gods. Through shadows and light, light and shadow, cast by the glow of the lamps placed here and there, the plotters were the figures of the dance and the spectacle was one of fantastic beauty.

When the hour of departure came the young folks placed their feet through the maze of trees with the help of the colorful blue flashes of the lightning. Finally it was necessary to drive one of the machines down into the park and play the headlights on the path leading from the dance hall to the parking space. In spite of all these inconveniences, all enjoyed themselves and experienced a novel and entertaining situation.

B. & M. CAR SHOP STRIKE

Report That Employees Are
Armed to Be Investigated
By Captain Petrie

As a result of a report to strikers of the Boston & Maine car shops and roundhouse on the part of a young man who was employed as a strike-breaker at the roundhouse, to the effect that some of the employees of that plant were carrying firearms and other dangerous weapons, Capt. Petrie, head of the local criminal bureau, has been notified and it is understood that he is to conduct an investigation.

The young fellow called at strike headquarters yesterday afternoon and informed members of the press committee that he had been employed as a strike-breaker at the roundhouse for some time but, fearing that bodily harm would be done him by some of the employees of the plant, who carried firearms and long knives, he threw up his job. He also stated that four or five other young men employed at the roundhouse were also badly scared and were going to get through unless the men were prevented from carrying weapons.

A committee of strikers called on Supt. Jennings at the car shops yesterday afternoon in an endeavor to make arrangements for the payment of the strikers, who were unable to meet the paymaster at the Thorndike street freight house on last pay day. The superintendent assured the committee that he would get the money together and would notify them as soon as it had been set for the payment of back wages.

It is understood that five strike breakers at the roundhouse, who were dissatisfied with conditions, left their jobs yesterday and it is said they succeeded in inducing some of the strike breakers to leave their work. The working hours at the Billerica shops have been changed from 7 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., and the employees' train now leaves the Middlesex street station at 7:30 a. m. every morning. This train, which formerly consisted of five coaches, is now made up of five coaches only.

THE TAX RATE FOR 1922

Tax Announcement Coming
in August—Hold 'er Newt,
She's Arealin'

The 1922 tax rate will be announced the middle of August and at the present time there is absolutely no way by which an approximate of its amount may be figured. With the present rate of $31.40 as a basis, it may be 50 cents or $1 more, or 60 cents or $1 less. It is a guess at best.

The assessing force will not begin to write the tax books until next Monday, but will do overtime work in an effort to finish them by the middle of next month.

Daniel B. Hogan, chairman of the board, is on a vacation, but John H. Dwyer and Wilfred J. Achin, the two other members, said today that they had no conference with Mayor Brown on the probable tax rate figure. The mayor announced a day or so ago that the rate this year would be 60 cents less than at present and that he had come to this conclusion after a conference with the assessors. The rate assessors now on the job know of no such conference and said today that they have no means of telling what the rate will be.

STATE AID-CONTROVERSY

Trades and Labor and Textile
Councils to File, Protests
With Council

Mayor George H. Brown stated today that he will take no action regarding a successor to William A. Arnold, superintendent of state aid, until after tomorrow night's meeting of the city council, at which time representatives of the Trades and Labor council and the Lowell Textile council will file formal protest against the alleged acts of Supt. Arnold in referring service men, who had applied at his office for aid, to the Merrimack Mill Co. and the Boston & Maine car shops, at both of which places labor troubles were in progress.

The mayor would not say whether he would eventually send the name of Mrs. Sarah H. Kiltredge to the council as a nominee to succeed Mr. Arnold, although he admitted that he had in mind consideration.

"I prefer to wait and see whether the council takes any definite stand on the matter tomorrow night," he said. Mrs. Kiltredge's name was sent to the council for the position of assistant superintendent of state aid, but not so far when the civil service commissioner, classifying Mrs. P. McCann, the present incumbent, as an under civil service laws and regulations. At that time there was considerable talk concerning the possibility of the mayor nominating Mrs. Kiltredge for the superintendency and this discussion has come to a head recently, due, it is believed, to controversy between Supt. Arnold and Stephen C. Garrity, legion commander, over the former's alleged action of recommending to service men who sought aid at his office, that work could be secured either at the Merrimack mills or at the railroad car shops in North Billerica.

THE LARGEST CITY PAYROLL

The largest city payroll of the year was in the hands of the city auditor today, awaiting the approval of the budget and audit commission. The amount of the roll, $43,240.76, is more than $3000 higher than last week's. Last week's payroll totaled $39,614.85, and the week previous, it amounted to $12,709.25. The water works payroll is bigger, by $500 this week, while streets have shot up approximately $7000. Police is $3000 less.

The name of Sutton Wilson, former superintendent, does not appear on the payroll of the division of ashes and waste collection.
